POND'S EXTRA CT.
LETTERS FROM THE GOVERNORS.
It is a well-known fact that Pond's Extract is used and recommended by more distinguished people than any preparation or remedy extant.
It is used in the household of the President as well as that of the humblest citizen; by members of the army and the navy, the Bar and the Church, the pulpit and the press—all ranks and classes of people. To further illustrate this fact we append a few of the more recent letters from Governors of different States:

The Governor of New Hampshire.
GENTLEMEN: I have used Pond's Extract in my family for several years, and have found it a most desirable and valuable remedy. Yours truly,
Dec. 8, '87. MOODY CURRIER.

The Governor of Pennsylvania.
GENTS: Pond's Extract has been a valued reliance in our family for several years, especially in relieving the aches, sprains and bruises incident to children. Very truly yours,
Nov. 30, '87. JAMES A. BEAVER.

The Governor of New Jersey.
DEAR SIR: I have for many years used Pond's Extract, and have derived great benefit and relief therefrom. Yours truly,
Dec. 5, '87. R. S. GREEN.

The Lt.-Governor of Illinois.
GENTLEMEN: Pond's Extract has long had a place in the medicine chest of my family. I assure you that we have found it a ready and valuable agent to relieve pain in many cases, and that very promptly. We cannot well keep house without it.
I am, truly yours,
Oct. 10, '87. J. C. SMITH.

Pond's Extract is invaluable for all kinds of Pain, Inflammation and Hemorrhages.
Excellence invites imitation. Beware of worthless imitations of Pond's Extract.

THE TREATY REJECTED

Cleveland's Luck Again Comes to His Rescue.

KILGORE SURRENDERS THE BILL.

The Republicans Were Prepared to Make It Very Ardent for the Texas Gentleman and His Democratic Supporters.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—Representative Kilgore, acting chairman of the house committee on enrolled bills, called upon the president this morning and delivered to him the Chinese exclusion bill.

CHINA REFUSES TO RATIFY.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—The president has received official information of the refusal of the Chinese government to ratify the amended treaty.

HOW KILGORE WEAKENED.

The Democrats Evacuated to Avoid a Raking Fire from the Republicans.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—The Pacific coast republicans made it so hot for Mr. Kilgore of Texas to-day that he decided to take the Chinese bill to the president at 11 o'clock. He was in a swelling Texas mood last night, and said he would take his time to deliver the bill. His time might be a day or two, or a week or two; but the republicans of the Pacific coast determined to bring Kilgore up to the bar of the house to-day and make him give his reason why he did not deliver the bill to the president.

In the resolution which Morrow introduced yesterday he did not charge dereliction of duty upon Kilgore, and because of the absence of that charge the speaker decided the resolution was not a question of privilege. Morrow drew another resolution which he proposed to offer this morning, charging Kilgore with dereliction of duty in refusing to deliver the Chinese exclusion bill to the president. The democrats, ascertaining that this was the course to be pursued today, saw then that they would either have to defend Kilgore's withholding the Chinese exclusion bill, which would put them in a very ugly position, or else vote to direct him to carry the bill at once to the president, which would be equivalent to censure. The democrats did not desire to be put in the position of defending the preposterous position taken by Mr. Kilgore of Texas. They did not desire to pose before the country as defending the extraordinary and revolutionary claim set up by Kilgore that he would withhold the bill a few days or a few weeks, just as he should choose.

The republicans were in a fighting mood in the house this morning, and they proposed to attack the democrats all along the line for defending and justifying Kilgore in his violation of the plain intent of the rules and constitution.

The democrats, seeing danger, told Kilgore he would better deliver the bill at once, so Kilgore put the Chinese exclusion bill in the pocket of his gray coat, which was made in Texas, got into a street car, paid his 5 cents fare and rode up to the White house, got out and walked to the president's room and handed to President Cleveland the Chinese exclusion bill.

Kilgore decided he would not wait two or three weeks before delivering the bill and it was a very wise and safe decision for him to make. Senator Stewart had decided to take action in the senate looking to the enforcement of immediate delivery to the president of bills that have passed both houses of congress. He introduced a bill in the senate this morning to regulate the presentation of bills and joint resolutions to the president of the United States. This bill makes it the duty of the speaker of the house and the president of the senate to have all bills and joint resolutions presented forthwith to the president in person, and to have the fact reported to their respective houses at once.

Senator Stewart also introduced a resolution reciting the statement in the public press that presentation of a bill to the president is frequently delayed for several days, and sometimes weeks, by the house committee on enrolled bills, and resolving that the senate, as a branch of the legislative department of the government, call the attention of the house of representatives to such delays in presenting bills to the president of the United States and asking the house to require its officers to present such bills without unnecessary delay.

THE PRESIDENT NOW CAN SIGN.

The president was officially informed late this afternoon that the Chinese government had rejected the recently negotiated treaty between China and the United States. It is now made clear how fortunate it was that the republicans fought for the exclusion bill at every stage of its progress. It is also made clear how fortunate it was that the democrats were defeated in the senate in their persistent and determined effort to delay and defeat the bill. The president's duty is now plain. He can do nothing but to sign the exclusion bill and this he should do immediately. There is no cause for delay. He took no action this afternoon or evening. It was hoped he would give the matter attention this afternoon when he learned that the Chinese treaty was rejected, but he preferred to delay.

SENATE PROCEEDINGS.

Passage of the Bill Creating a Department of Agriculture.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—Stewart introduced a bill regulating the presentation of bills and joint resolutions to the president of the United States; referred to the committee on rules. It makes it the duty of the speaker of the house and president of the senate to have bills and joint resolutions presented forthwith to the president in person and have the fact reported to the respective houses. Stewart also offered a resolution reciting the statements in the public press that the presentation of bills to the president was frequently delayed several days, sometimes weeks, by the house committee on enrolled bills, and resolving that the senate as a branch of the legislative department of the government, call the attention of the house to such delays, and ask the house to require its officers to present such bills without unnecessary delay.

It was ordered that when the senate adjourn it be to Monday.

The house bill to make the department of agriculture one of the executive departments of the government was taken up, the question being on an amendment to strike out the fifth section, which transfers the weather bureau to the department of agriculture.

FOR A DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

Chandler expressed himself willing to vote for the bill, foreseeing, however, that it would result in the establishment (which he would favor) of a department of national industries.

Reagan sent to the clerk's desk and had read a substitute which he desired to offer for the whole bill. It was for the creation of a department of industry, and would (he said) embrace commerce, both internal and foreign, as well as the interests of agriculture. Agriculture and commerce were inseparable and independent, and he thought it would be a mistake to pass a bill on the subject that would omit either.

The discussion was continued by Call in favor of the transfer of the weather bureau, and by Senators Wilson of Iowa, Palmer, Salisbury and Hale against it.

Finally a vote was taken on the amendment to strike out the fifth section of the bill; agreed to—yeas 33, nays 9—so the proposition to transfer the weather bureau to the department of agriculture was defeated.

Reagan offered the substitute to which he had previously referred, but it was laid on the table.

The bill then passed. It provides that the department of agriculture shall be an executive department, under the supervision of a secretary of agriculture, who shall be appointed by the president, with the advice and consent of the senate. There shall be an assistant secretary of agriculture, to be appointed by the president, with the advice and consent of the senate, who shall perform such duties as may be required by law or prescribed by the secretary. The secretary shall receive the same salary as is paid to the secretary of each of the executive departments. The salary of the assistant secretary shall be the same as now paid to the first assistant secretary of the department of the interior.

A committee of conference was ordered on disagreeing votes, and Senators Palmer, Sabin and George were appointed conferees on the part of the senate.

THE LIBRARY CONFERENCE.

The conference report on the sundry civil appropriation bill was presented and agreed to.

Stewart inquired what had become of his amendment regarding land and timber frauds.

Allison replied that the senate conferrees had yielded on that point.

Stewart then proceeded to re-state his views on the subject.

At the conclusion of Stewart's speech, Sherman asked Allison whether the conference report covered all matters in dispute between the two houses.

Allison replied that the question on which the conferees had been unable to agree was an amendment as to the new library building.

Sherman suggested that there was no sense in keeping up the controversy between the two houses as to the library building. The senate could not agree to the house proposition to break a string of contracts and make a new start. In his judgment, the only proper course was to drop the whole subject for the present.

Allison made a statement of the position of the house and senate conferees, and expressed the opinion that the house proposition involved the entire suspension of work until next congress.

Mr. Hale, one of the conferees, expressed a belief that some plan could be agreed upon that would embody the two fundamental ideas of each house, that of the house being that charge of the work shall be taken away from the present management, and that of the senate being that there shall be no unreasonable delay in the construction of the building.

Sherman moved to instruct the senate conferrees that if the conferrees of the two houses cannot agree, the senate conferrees shall propose that the text of the house bill be stricken out of the bill. This motion was agreed to, and the conferrees on the part of the senate (Allison, Hale and Cockrell) were reappointed.

The senate then adjourned till Monday.

HOUSE PROCEEDINGS.

A Resolution About Trusts—Holman's Land Bill Amended and Passed.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—Crain of Texas asked unanimous consent to offer a resolution authorizing the committee on judiciary to report at any time, for immediate consideration, any measures providing for the suppression and prevention of trusts. He asked that the resolution be referred to the committee on judiciary, because the house had practically no committee on rules, three members of that committee being absent, and he was informed that none of them would return. Both parties had denounced trusts, and the president had declared the opposition of the administration to them. It seemed the committee on ways and means was confessedly unable to present to the house any measure on the subject, and he thought it due to the people of the country that the house should be authorized to have right of way with legislation of that character.

Hopkins of New York objected.

The committee on public lands reported back the bill to suspend the operation of the pre-emption, timber culture and desert land laws. The bill as amended as to strike out all reference to suspension of laws, and as amended was passed. It now simply provides that during the pendency of measures now before congress in relation to forfeiture of certain lands heretofore granted by congress to railroad corporations, no act done by any such corporation shall in any wise enlarge the right or claim of such corporation to any lands covered by any such grant, or diminish any right now existing in the United States to declare forfeiture. This provision is not to be construed to in any wise affect or waive any right now existing on behalf of the United States to declare forfeiture of any lands embraced in any such grant.

The house then went into committee of the whole on the private calendar.

The committee having arisen the house passed a number of private bills and took a recess, the evening session to be for the consideration of private pension bills.

CRADDLE AND KILGORE OBJECT.

At the evening session Bingham of Pennsylvania called the up the bill granting a pension to the widow of Gen. Sheridan, and on this occasion Cheadle of Indiana was the objector, and he insisted upon his point of no quorum, the bill was withdrawn.

Subsequently Bingham asked unanimous consent to have the bill made a special order for December 6, but on this proposition Kilgore of Texas objected.

Thirty private pension bills were passed, and the house at 10:30 adjourned until Monday.

THE CONGRESSIONAL CAMPAIGN.

Scott of Pennsylvania to Be Chairman of the Committee.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—It is reported here that Representative W. L. Scott of Pennsylvania will be placed in charge of the congressional campaign committee, with headquarters in New York. This course is said to be necessary, in view of the fact that Senator Kenna, who for years past has been at the head of the committee, will be kept in West Virginia until election day, as Gen. Goff, his republican opponent, is making a determined effort to secure control of the West Virginia legislature.

A PETITION FROM CORVALLIS.

They Ask the Government to Begin Work on the Upper Willamette.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—Senator Dolph has presented to the secretary of war a petition of the citizens of Corvallis and vicinity, praying for an order for the expenditure of so much of the appropriation for the improvement as is necessary to reach the Willamette river above Corvallis to prevent the threatened cut off. The chief of engineers has approved the project for such improvement and directed the commencement of work.

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS.

Indian Depredations Claims.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—Representative Hermann of Oregon to-day reported favorably from the house committee on Indian depredations claims the senate bill to reimburse certain persons who expended money and furnished services and supplies in repelling invasions and suppressing Indian hostilities within the territorial limits of the state of Nevada.

The Sugar Question Hearing.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—The hearing by the senate finance committee on the sugar question, both the tariff and the trust features, will begin to-morrow with examination of John E. S. Earle, Jr., secretary of the sugar trust. The hearing will continue into next week. The hearing on the resolution in respect to the foreign copper syndicate will begin Thursday.

Mrs. Cleveland Goes to the Mountains.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—Mrs. Cleveland and Mrs. Folsom left here this morning for a short stay in the Adirondacks.

A New Minister to Belgium.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—The president sent to the senate this afternoon the nomination of John G. Pathurst of Michigan, minister to Belgium, and the following postmasters: Walter C. Newberry, Chicago, Ill., vice S. C. Judd, resigned; Charles H. Tracey, Anaconda, Montana territory.

A New Postmaster for Chicago.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—Gen. Walter C. Newberry has been appointed postmaster at Chicago.

BASEBALL.

The Australian Clubs May Go to San Francisco via Portland.

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—Connelly of Washington, and Healy of Indianapolis, were signed to-day for Spalding's Australian trip. This makes one or more representatives of each league club on the All American team, as follows: Ward of New York, captain; Kelly of Boston, Hanlon of Detroit, Carroll of Pittsburg, Wood and Fogarty of Philadelphia, Tiernan of New York, Healy of Indianapolis, Connelly of Washington, and Simpson of New York.

The Chicago and All Americans will play their farewell game here October 20th, and leave October 21st in a special car with a dining car attached, in which the party will live until their arrival in San Francisco. They will play in Denver, Oct 27 and 28, and Salt Lake City, October 30 and 31. Negotiations are now pending that may take the party from Salt Lake to San Francisco via Butte, Helena, Spokane Falls, Seattle, Tacoma and Portland, in which event the special sleeping and dining car will run the entire trip. Mr. L. S. Lynch, the business manager of the tour, sails for Australia next Monday, to complete arrangements there. The clubs sail from San Francisco, November 17th.

YESTERDAY'S RECORD.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 21.—The home club won to-day by superior and timely batting. Score, Pittsburg 2, Boston 1. Batteries, Morris and Carroll and Radbourne and Tate.

DETROIT, Sept. 21.—To-day's game was an exciting contest from first to last, and the game was a tie when called on account of darkness at the end of the eighth inning. Score, Detroits 3, New York 3. Batteries, Getzein and Ganzel and Keefe and Murphy.

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—Tener was badly supported in the first game to-day, and became of illness had to retire in the fifth. Van Haltren pitched a good game after that, but the Washingtons had an easy victory. In the second game O'Day's support was miserable. Added to this, Chicago hit him with ease, while the Senators could do little with Krock. Score of first game, Chicago 2, Washington 8. Batteries, Tener, Van Haltren and Darling and Whitney and Mack. Second game, Chicago 10 Washington 0. Batteries, Krock and Daly and O'Day and Arundel.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 21. — Buffington pitched a good game to-day, and though the home team did the best fielding, it lost the game by one run. Score, Indianapolis 2, Philadelphia 3. Batteries, Burdick and Buckley and Buffington and Clements.

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 21.—Rain prevented the Kansas City-Baltimore game to-day.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 21.—Brooklyn 6, Cincinnati 2.

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 21.—Athletics 7, Louisville 4.

CALLED ON HARRISON.

The General Receives One of the Largest Delegations of the Campaign.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 21.—Gen. Harrison received two delegations to-day. One from Winchester and other towns in Randolph county, Indiana, composed largely of farmers, came on two special trains of forty coaches, and numbered over 2500, being one of the largest delegations that has visited the city. Among their several political organizations were 125 Tippecanoe veterans. Also a Lincoln league Club of 200 first voters. At the head of the column marched Wm. Montgomery, their oldest Tippecanoe veteran, aged 89. Five bands accompanied them, and many thousand strangers attending the state fair witnessed their creditable parade en route to University park.

The second delegation came from Dayton, Ohio, and numbered 250, including fifty-three veterans of 1840. Gen. Harrison received the delegations jointly. Gen. Stone of Randolph county, and Col. John G. Lowe of Dayton were spokesmen in behalf of the visitors.

Gen. Harrison was looking unusually well, and spoke with great animation, so that his words were distinctly heard at the outskirts of the large crowd, which numbered perhaps 4000, including many visitors attending the state fair. At the conclusion of the speech-making, Gen. Harrison came down from the platform, and for over an hour shook hands with the pushing crowd.

DEATH OF AN ACTOR.

The Drama of Life Closes for William Warren of Boston.

BOSTON, Sept. 21.—William Warren, the actor, died at 9 o'clock this morning. William Warren, a dealer in lumber on Seventeenth street, Philadelphia, in 1812, was the father of the celebrated actor-manager of this country. Warren the younger made his debut in 1832 at the Arch-street theater, Philadelphia, the occasion being a benefit for the elder Warren's family, he having died penniless. He traveled until October, 1840, when he came to Boston on an engagement with the Howard Athenæum, where he played with great success until February, 1847, when he joined the Boston Museum Company, with which he remained over thirty-five years, or until the season of 1882-83, when he retired from the stage. He was an extremely popular member of that company.

CHICAGO GAINS HER POINT.

She Is Given a White Card and Told to Make Out Her List.

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—Chairman Midgely is authority for the statement that all difficulties attending Transcontinental rates will be removed to-morrow. Chairman Leeds notified him to prepare a list of commodities on which lower rates were wanted by Chicago shippers, and that any request made by him, or any line in the Western Railway Association, would be honored, and new rates made accordingly. A list of about sixty articles was prepared and sent to Mr. Leeds to-day, and the expectation is that to-morrow new rates will be issued. It is said the list will include practically all the articles manufactured here, regarding which there has been so much agitation.

A VOICE FROM THE WILDERNESS.

No-Man's-Land Calls Upon Congress to Drop Political Strife.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 21.—A Post-Dispatch special from Beaver, No-Man's-Land, gives the proceedings of the Oklahoma territory convention. O. G. Chase was nominated for delegate to the fifty-first congress. A full ticket for a territorial council was placed in the field. The platform asks that No-Man's-Land be placed under control of the state of Colorado until it perfects laws of its own, and calls on congress to drop political strife and legislate in the interest of No-Man's-Land, where it is badly needed.

TEXAS REPUBLICANS IN DOUBT.

Tired, Perhaps, of the Farce of Voting in that State.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Sept. 21.—The republican state convention held two sessions yesterday and adjourned till to-day without accomplishing anything. There is a divided sentiment as to the advisability of putting a state ticket in the field. Some favor endorsing a joint election of the ticket of the union labor and prohibition parties.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 21.—A Fort Worth special says: The Texas republican state convention is fighting over a proposition not to nominate a state ticket. Much acrimonious debate is being indulged in.

If you wake in the morning with a bitter taste in the mouth, coated tongue, perhaps headache, your liver is torpid. You need Carter's Little Liver Pills.

Purchase your tickets and register your sleeping car accommodation at No. 2 Washington street, office Northern Pacific Railroad.

AT THE STATE FAIR

Lady Duffy and Oneco the Winning Horses.

A GREAT CROWD IN ATTENDANCE.

The Live Stock Exhibits—List of Additional Premiums so Far as Awarded—The Speed Programme for To-day.

SALEM, Or., Sept. 21.—The weather has been delightful, and the track was in fair condition for racing. Fully 10,000 people were on the grounds to-day, and of these not less than 8000 were in the grand stands and on the quarter-stretch in the afternoon. So far as the agricultural features of the fair are concerned, this has been the greatest day. The parade of premium horses and cattle in the forenoon attracted every one, and the exhibition of three traction engines running about the field was most interesting. To-morrow's racing programme, given below, promises fine sport. The races will begin immediately after the arrival of the Portland train, and will be finished before trafntime at night.

THE RACES.

Running—One mile dash, handicap, purse $100.

W. F. Matlock's ch. m. Lady Duffy, by Patsy Duffey, dam by Monte Christo, 110 lbs. Matlock 1
R. E. Bybee's ch. c. Broadchurch, by Lizster, dam Tibbie Dunbar, 100 lbs. O'Hara 2
W. H. Babb's b. f. Roly Boly, by Bank Roll, dam by April Fool, 110 lbs. Nelson 3
D. R. Wells's b. h. John Hall, by Woodbury, dam by Kilkenny, 104 lbs. McGaugh 4
B. R. Baker's b. c. Warpeake, by Chesapeake, dam by War Dance, 104 lbs. Fleit 5

Time by quarters, 26½, 54, 1:21, 1:47.
Judges—J. T. Apperson, W. W. Thayer, D. W. Looney. Timers—T. H. Tongue, J. L. Hallett.

The Betting—Repetta was withdrawn this morning. Lady Duffy, from the same stable, seeming certain to win, it was not easy to sell pools until the other four horses were put into the field against the Lady. Then the bidding became spirited, and when Duffy would bring $10, not infrequently would the field sell as high as $20.

The Race—In the drawing, War Peak won the inside, with Broadchurch, Roly Boly, John Hall and Lady Duffy placed in the order named. Roly Boly got the best of the start, with Lady Duffy the only one not close up. They ran in Indian rank until the half mile, when they bunched up, and for the next quarter was seen the closest race of the meeting. The five horses had their noses almost in a straight line, but Lady Duffy's superior qualities were quickly seen. At the three-quarter post she took the lead, and though hotly pressed by Broadchurch and Roly Boly, one on each side, passed under the wire winner by a neck, Broadchurch second by half a length. The two others were not placed, but their positions at the finish are given in the summary above.

SPECIAL TROT.

Trotting—2:35 class, special purse of $500.

McKnight Bros.' b. s. Oneco, by Altamont, dam by Doble. Jay Beach 8 2 1 1 2 1
R. S. Perkins's s. m. Maud Knox, by Winthrop Knox, dam by Pathfinder. J. K. Misner 4 1 3 3 1 2
G. M. Misner's br. m. Oleander, by Menelaus, dam by Border Chief. G. M. Misner 1 4 2 2 3 3
J. C. Owens's s. g. Jim Irvington by Irvington, dam by Kentucky Hunter. Hawley 2 3 4 4 4 4

Time, 2:34, 2:30¾, 2:34½, 2:34¾, 2:32½, 2:35.

The Betting—The contesting horses were the same as in Tuesday's race, except that James C. had been replaced by Jim Irvington. Maud Knox was a hot favorite at $20, to $10 on Oneco, Irvington $8, and Oleander $6. There were over a hundred tickets in the mutual box, and only eight of these on Oleander. They paid $63 30, the biggest sum the Paris mutuals have ever paid at Salem. Before the second heat Maud Knox continued to be the favorite, $20 being bid to $10 on Oneco, and the other two in the field at $4. It was the same in the mutuals, which paid $9 50 at the close of the heat.

First Heat—Oneco drew first position, Oleander second, Irvington third, and Maud Knox on the outside. They were tapped off at the second score, Oleander slightly in the lead, with Oneco pressing him closely. There was a very palpable foul on the turn, Oleander causing Beach, the driver of Oneco, to perceptibly slacken the pace of the stallion in order to prevent a collision. The mare crossed in front of him while Oneco pulled out to second position and trotted finely in a vain endeavor to make up the last ground. On the back stretch Maud came forward and contested gallantly with Oleander for first position, at the three-quarter post she broke badly, and fell back to fourth place. A close struggle was going on in the meantime between Oneco and Irvington, but the son of Altamont could not make the ventage lost at the start from the fouling of Oleander, and Irvington took second place. Time by quarters, 36¾, 1:17½, 1:59¾, 2:34. Beach reported the foul, saying that Misner had twice touched his wheel, but the judges took no cognizance of it, believing it would be a gross injustice to the mare either to send her from the track or to set her behind the other horses, one of which penalties would have to be enforced if the claim of foul was allowed.

Second Heat—At the request of the owner of Maud Knox, Misner was taken from behind her and Green substituted just before the start. The impression prevailed that Maud should have won the heat if driven at her best. Be that as it may, the sports felt confident she would win, and continued to back her heavily. The horses scored six or seven times, being finally ordered to score by Oneco, who is certainly the favorite animal at the first of a heat that ever stood in the 2:35 class. When they were finally sent away Oneco was fully two lengths behind, but his driver didn't seem to mind the disadvantage. Oleander and Maud Knox were making a pretty race at the quarter post, with Oneco coming up rapidly. At the half the stallion had taken the lead, with Maud second, but dropped back to second by a short break, still keeping in the lead of Oleander. At the three-quarters Maud and Oneco were again neck and neck, and trotted beautifully in that position until within a few rods of the wire, when Maud forged ahead, to the delight of the crowd and the immense satisfaction of her driver, Oneco second, Irvington third, Oleander fourth; time, 2:30¾.

Third Heat—Maud was a greater favorite than ever, bringing $20 to $4 on the field. The start was fair, and the horses were all well bunched. At the quarter pole Maud broke and fell back to third place. Oneco and Oleander were neck and neck at half, and closely contested the remainder of the heat, but Oleander broke near the finish and Oneco won easily, Maud Knox third, and Irvington just saving his distance; time, 2:34½. Mutuals paid $17 70.

Fourth Heat—The judges gave the horses a bad start, both Maud and Irvington being two or more lengths behind the others. Oneco immediately took the lead, and the race was simply a procession. Maud broke at the three-quarters and lost all chance of coming to the front. Oneco won easily in 2:34¼, Oleander second, Maud third, Irvington fourth.

Fifth Heat—Pools were turned completely over by Oneco's victories, and many tickets were bought at $2 to $5 on Maud and $2 on the field. The horses secured a good start, and Oleander and Maud passed to the lead together. Oneco broke badly on the first turn, and recovered in bad position. The two mares trotted neck and neck around the turn and down the back stretch. At the five-eighths pole Maud went from her feet and lost two lengths before she came down. Oleander also broke, and Maud passed out winner in 2:32½, closely pursued by Oneco, who had been working splendidly, Oleander third, Irvington distanced.

Sixth Heat—The pool box was completely reversed again, and sold at $20 on Maud to $6 on the others in the field. The horses secured a start with Maud at a slight disadvantage. On the turn both Oneco and the big sorrel broke, and Oleander pushed far to the front. Oneco, however, settled down to work, and succeeded in catching her on the back turn. Breaking, he lost two lengths, but recovering again passed Oleander just before the wire was reached, winning the heat and race by a head, amid tremendous excitement, Oleander second, Maud Knox third. Time, 2:28.

THE LAST DAY'S PROGRAMME.

STATE FAIR GROUNDS, Sept. 21.—To-morrow, although the last day of the state fair, will be the very best day of the week, so far as the racing events are concerned, if the present fine weather continues. AMONG THE CRIMINALS.

More About the Gigantic Swindle at New York.

A FIGHT FOR A RIGHT OF WAY

Thomas Carey Away $400 000 from a Pay Car—Death in the Street—A Bold Theft—Cripple Tragedy—Crime Notes

NEW YORK Sept 21—James Bedell who swindled clients of the law firm of Shipman Burdon Farnham & Choate out of nearly $ 30 000 while acting as their mortgage clerk was yesterday indicted for grand larceny in the first degree The Gould and Joseph Pulitzer, proprietors of the press shop where Bedell says he lost $170 000 and who were arrested last night were also arraigned this morning and remanded into the custody of the police

Later in the day Bedell appeared as complainant against the policy dealers Herman J Emerson and Philip Goss in whose shop at 180 Broadway he says he lost $1 7 277 18? Defendants were held in $5000 bail each for trial

THE EXTENT OF THE SWINDLE.

NEW YORK, Sept 21—Inspector Byrnes said to day that the bottom of the Bedell swindle had been reached, that $250 000 was the full amount of his thefts Bedell s methods were of such a nature as to bind his firm to full responsibility to the investors in every instance The police are puzzled over Bedell's assertion that he lost $120 000 playing "policy" They profess to be unable to understand how so much money could be lost on policy and this part of his story the police are industriously sifting In any event this money is undoubtedly lost All Bedell s victims can hope to recover is what can be realized by the sale of his Westchester farm

The deputy assistant register of deeds in speaking to-day of Bedell s forgery of the register's signature and stamp said it was possible other cases of a similar kind might have escaped the notice of the officials in the register's office He had not the least doubt but other cases would turn up

It was stated at the office of the Farmers Loan and Trust Company to-day that that company which is among the heaviest investors will not be losers a Bedell's employers will have to make the defalcations good

FIGHTING FOR RIGHT OF WAY.

A Lively Battle for Possession of a Colorado Canyon

DENVER Sept 21—An Animas Col special says Trouble has been brewing here for several days between the Rio Grande and Midland railways over the right of way up Ute avenue into the canyon which it is believed, both desire as an outlet for their roads over the range into Utah The Rio Grande on Wednesday began laying track on the street and had already reached the base of the mountain before the Midland people discovered what was going on They at once began laying track in the same direction and swore out an injunction against the Rio Grande to discontinue work

The matter was brought before the council and it was discovered that the city had granted the right of way to the Midland, and consequently the Rio Grande was ordered to stop Time was paid no attention to the order The Midland continued work, and yesterday when the track was laid almost to the Rio Grande track, President Scott of the Midland at the head of 200 men charged on the Rio Grande cars loaded with railroad iron that obstructed the venue With President Scott in the front rank the men yelled For the Colorado Midland" and tried to board the Rio Grande cars

Col J H Waters who had about 150 Italians on his cars, said to us men Give them the best you've got in the shop boys, and hold the fort" With this the Italians raised their shovels and clubs the gang took up the cry and clubs and broad shovels rained blows on the heads of the Midland attacking party

Police officers present connected to arrest the Midland men, and President Scott called his followers off

The fight lasted only about eight minutes, but what with the jabbering of the Italians the rattling made by the descent of shovels upon the heads of the Midland men and the cries and groans of the wounded it was a lively fight. The sheriff is still in possession of the point of dispute, and the Rio Grande train is standing at the place having taken possession after the battle yesterday

Agent Waters of the Rio Grande is being tried for contempt of court. The charge is founded upon his refusal to clear the street, as ordered by the court, following which refusal the battle occurred

A warrant for the arrest of President John Scott, of the Midland, is out, he having led the attacking force

LATER—Sixteen of the Rio Grande men have just been arrested on state warrants, charging them with riot. Col. Jesse Waters, agent of the Rio Grande and commander of the forces, heads the list the others being the men whom he armed Wednesday night to take forcible possession of the intersection over which the Midland and Rio Grande war has been raging

THE COCKRELL CASE

Benjamin's Daughter is Allowed $3000 and is the Ward of Her Aunt.

SAN FRANCISCO Sept 21—Letters of guardianship were to day granted Fabrone Benjamin aunt of Edna Cockrell the child's father, Benjamin Cockrell, having decided that it would be better for him not to make any contest against the application of Miss Rebecca for letters of guardianship When the papers were prepared too Judy was examined as to her qualifications and they proving satisfactory the judge granted the letters The child will receive $3000 from the insurance due upon her mother's life The judge instructed the attorneys to place the money in bank to the credit of the child not be withdrawn except by order of the court Now that the question of the guardinship of Edna has been settled the habeas corpus proceedings which is set for Monday will probably be dismissed and Cockrell be at liberty to go where he pleases and not as he is doing at present—walking about town accompanied by a state or deputy sheriff who does not let him out of his sight

From the facts set forth in the petition and from what could be learned from the interested part es it appears that the mother, Bertha Robinson gave birth to the child mentioned in the petition in Oakland about three years ago Benjamin Cockrell did not deny that he was the father of the child and shortly afterward she went with him to Oregon and there he promised to marry her provided she would first have her life insured in his favor She applied in several companies for such policies, but was unsuccessful in all as the insurance men refused to issue any policy payable to Cockrell, as he had no insurable interest in her life Finally however she took out policies to the amount of $12 500 payable to her legal heirs and Cockrell then married her at Spokane Falls in October of last year One day after the marriage Cockrell is said to have directed his wife to take some clothing out of a trunk and in doing so she discharged a pistol which was lying among the clothes, the bullet striking her in the abdomen from the effects of which she died the following day Previous to her death Cockrell is alleged induced her to make a will turning over all her property to him and making no provision for the child

After the death of the mother Cockrell, according to report secreted the child and circulated a report that she was dead The insurance companies then paid $9000 into the hands as the nearest living heir The remainder of the money a policy or $5000 in the Travelers Insurance Company of this city, was in the hands of Mrs Robinson, his sister in law and Cockrell in order to get the money came to San Francisco and it is alleged represented to her that his wife had left her $1000 She gave him the document and when he attempted to collect the money the company refused payment and stated that they desired further evidence of the death of his daughter It is claimed the girl is still living in San Francisco and acting upon this information the girl's aunt petitioned for a writ of habeas corpus, setting forth that the girl was restrained of her liberty for fraudulent motives by her father. In the meantime it was feared Cockrell would disappear, and consequently he was arrested yesterday

THE DRIED FRUIT TRUST

The Organization Completed and Officers Elected

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept 21—The California Dried Fruit Association to-day completed its organization, electing the following officers A T Hatch, president, Wm Brumhill, secretary, Geo. John T Cutting general manager, and a board of trustees from among the most prominent fruit-growers and dealers, who represent a probable controlling position on the crop of the state Gen Cutting leaves for the East next Monday to arrange for agencies, methods of selling, etc The officials state that the association will shortly open an exchange in this city for the accommodation of sellers and buyers, and to receive samples for offering through its Eastern agents A strong effort will be made to concentrate the greatest possible amount of dried fruits, grapes and raisins in the hands of the association with which to break up the present competition of these goods with themselves in the Eastern markets It is stated also that concentrated efforts will be made to procure lower freight rates

The association offers membership to all persons engaged in growing or handling fruit Growers may take any amount of stock not exceeding one share for each acre of orchard, or vineyard but dealers will not be permitted to take less than 200 shares

REPUBLICAN RATIFICATION

A Rousing Meeting Addressed by Eastern Orators

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 21—The republicans of this city held a very enthusiastic ratification meeting to-night in the Wigwam, which was so crowded that many people were unable to gain admittance The meeting was held under the direction of the Union League club and Hon Wm. Wilkinson of Indiana presided Thirty one vice presidents and nine secretaries were chosen The feature of the evening was the singing of the Emerson quartette of Indiana. The president of the meeting made a few remarks on taking the chair and was followed by H C. Hedges of Ohio The speaker said that he and the gentlemen from Indiana had come to California to help make Gen. Harrison president, that Ohio could be depended on, having sent out from her cradle such men as Grant, Sherman and Sheridan

The sovereign grand lodge, I O O F held its final session to-day The newly elected officers were installed and the grand sire made appointments. The lodge then adjourned sine die.

CRAZY ON PERPETUAL MOTION

Two Men Engage in a Desperate Fight in the City Jail Last Evening

Two crazy men confined in one of the large cells in the city jail, took a notion last night to enter into a sparring contest without the aid of gloves P R rules, audience, referee or any other such minor preliminaries usually observed on such occasions

Morris Keating, a man who has already several times been confined in the asylum, had been occupying the cell alone Early yesterday morning the other man, Eugene Shydecker was brought up from the city park where he was found washing his feet and performing other details of the toilet at an hour when most good people should be at home It was then thought that he was a simple drunk

Later in the day a friend of his came to the station and told the officers that he was not exactly of sound mind and that he was particularly deranged on the hobby of perpetual motion This proved to be true, for about 7 o'clock, when everything about the jail was quiet, an unusual commotion was heard in the cell occupied by the two men

They were found to be engaged in a desperate struggle for supremacy It is thought that Shydecker was endeavoring to give a practical demonstration of perpetual motion. In trying to separate the fighting men Officer Hollenberg was bitten in the wrist though not severely After the men were separated and placed in separate cells, perpetual motion of a milder nature still continued for a brief time but soon spent itself and quietude again reigned supreme.

DR ROBERT NOURSE.

On Monday and Tuesday evenings next, the 24th and 25th inst., the citizens of Portland will again have an opportunity of listening to Rev Robert Nourse in his lectures at the Tabernacle for the benefit of the Oregon Alpine Club

Mr Nourse occupies confessedly, one of the most prominent places among the platform orators of the day Those who had the pleasure of hearing him on the occasion of his first appearance in this city on August 28 will long remember his inspiring bursts of eloquence, his mirth provoking sallies of wit, his pathos, and best perhaps of all, his instructive lessons drawn from what seemed encyclopediac stores of knowledge A master of that most difficult branch of oratory, antithesis, in a few glowing phrases, he placed the respective claims of the two great nations, America and England, so vividly before his hearers that nothing remained to be said. Young and old should avail themselves of the opportunities about to be afforded to mingle instruction in the intellectual delight.

Apart from the merits of the orator, the object had in view by securing Mr Nourse services appeal strongly to the civic pride of the Portlanders The Oregon Alpine Club under whose auspices Mr Nourse appears have in view the best interests of the state and city The club have a great work mapped out before them which includes the advertisement and development of the resources and highest interests of the state

FRENCH PREJUDICE AGAINST GEN SHERIDAN

VANCOUVER Sept. 20 1888.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

The French (in France) are strongly saturated with prejudices against any person who participated, either as spectator or otherwise, in the memorable year of 1870 on the German side The great French paper, Figaro has the following venomous and villainous remarks upon the American hero, after receiving the news of his death, viz

Gen. Sheridan who had always the greatest contempt for France and who was always ready to announce it to the world, died yesterday near New York It was he who on the beginning of the year 1870, came to Europe and was attached to the staff of the king of Prussia and a witness at the bombardment of Paris He was a Yankee dilettante and his descrip tions of what he saw show him to possess a brutal temper beyond description which nobody will ever to get after reading it The disgrace that Victor Hugo heaped on him is insufficient to brand this American, who as a neutral witness ridiculed the Parisians when they were at the point of starvation"

It is a well established fact in history that Gen Sheridan reported first on his arrival to Marshal McMahon to accompany him, during the war as a spectator, but McMahon refused him abruptly, saying "We don't want any foreigner as military spectator" Sheridan then proceeded to Berlin, and the king of Prussia made him immediately an honorary member of his staff, whom he accompanied during said war

Whenever the memoirs of Gen. Sheridan are published the French press will receive additional inspiration to multiply their prejudice against the greatest of American generals whose aim in life was to act upon the great pivot of truth and who was too great a man to deny the truth

THE GARBAGE CREMATORY.

A Complete Description of One of Those Useful Consumers.

Something That Portland Greatly Needs to Assist in Maintaining a Good Sanitary Condition —It Is Found to Work Well

Now that the city fathers are considering the matter of having the garbage of the city burned, a little information about the crematory for this purpose which is to be put in operation on October 1 may be of interest The Pioneer Press states that the garbage crematory for St Paul will cost about $5000 From that journal the following elaborate description is condensed

DIMENSIONS OF THE BUILDING

The building will be three stories high and 45x80 feet in dimensions It will be constructed of wood The iron smoke stack will be 100 feet high The building will be located upon a bank and in such a way that it will be possible to drive dirt cars into it on the second and third floors

WHEN GARBAGE IS DUMPED

Teams with garbage are taken into the third story where the stuff is dumped into hopper These second story floors for the boiler rooms will be underlaid with iron

Adjoining the building on the north will be the crematory proper It will contain 100 cubic yards of garbage at a time It is not thought that it will supply the power of the dump during the busy time in the spring but it will at this time of the year A certain story for the burning of night soil is one of the things looked forward to in the near future The present crematory will not possess or everything but that When the crematory is completed rules will be adopted governing the scavenger department which will remove all objections to the passage of refuse matter along the streets The furnaces are to be erected on any street and will not be any more of a nuisance than a well conducted livery stable

THE DIFFERENT PATENTS

Mr Mann of Montreal says the Pioneer Press built a crematory there and that that city gave him a contract for five years to collect and consume the garbage of the city for $40 000 a year A physician of Milwaukee associated with William Forestell got up another furnace which has been adopted by the city of Milwaukee, and have given great satisfaction Detroit is now having a crematory built and other cities are going in

A short time ago Mr Engel of Des Moines perfected a patent which was not only adapted to garbage but to night soil and dead animals Upon he used for houses and has proved a great success The large furnace can be put in a hotel or tenement at an expense of $300 for the plant and will dispose of all the waste and excrementory matter in an establishment

THE RUNNING EXPENSE

Is only about 75 cents a day The Engel patent is the simplest, and requires the least labor The Mann comes next and the Pittsburg next The Milwaukee furnace requires skilled labor to run it as in connection with it is a steam engine, an elevator a drying room all separate from the furnace All the matter has to be handled by shovels The general difference between these machines consists in the applicat on of the garbage to the fire In the Forestell and the Keller the waste is thrown directly on the coals, while in the Engel and the Mann it falls on a grate and in both the fire passes over the material In all the furnaces the retort principle is essential In the Mann the fire passes over the garbage, the smoke and steam passing directly into the chimney In the Engel, to the general features of which the furnace to be used in Minneapolis will probably conform the garbage falls through chutes into the grate bars of the furnace Under the grate is an iron plate which will catch all the refuse and liquid matter which drains through the grate

THE FIRE IS STARTED

at the end next the chimney passes over the garbage to the opposite end where there is another iron of the same capacity, it passes through that fire and thence along the space under the iron plate above mentioned into the chimney By this process there is no possible chance of any gas or bad odor escaping, Even the smoke is consumed

A SHARP CRITICISM.

Remarks About Those Who Do Not Take the Interest They Ought in the State Fair.

FAIR GROUNDS Friday Sept 21

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

There is one peculiarity about the attendance at the state fair each year that must be especially noticeable to Marion county people I refer to the remarkably small percentage of Marion county farmers who encourage the fair and its beneficial advantages particularly to this county by their attendance I am sure I do not at all exaggerate by saying that fully 90 per cent of the farmers of this county remain at home during fair week, and think no more of a tending than if its annual meetings were held on the summit of Mount Hood.

While an agricultural organization such as our state fair is at present conducted is of incalculable advantage to the entire state it is especially so to the county where its grounds are located, yet a stroll among the exhibits here will show that while Polk Yamhill, Linn and even Lane and Washington are liberally represented, our own farmers are for the most part, digging potatoes and getting ready to go to the coast One of our most prominent farmers, who in an early day was an active supporter of the organization, remarked to me a few days ago that the fair "ought to go to hell" because it occurred during the hop picking season and the young people would insist on going to the fair and neglect hop picking

I have seen farmers go through the pavilion to-day and contemptuously remark of some article or exhibition there "Why I have got better than that at home" That is just what is the matter Farmers will not, when they can advertise their business and products in a way that would be advantageous to themselves and of vast importance to the state

Last October I attended the county fair of Knox county Ind, at Vincennes, and a neater and more attractive and systematic display of farm products of every description and stock of all kinds could not be imagined Every phase of the exhibition showed enterprise and a degree of local pride not only creditable but to an Oregonman absolute astonishing It greatly surpassed anything of the kind ever seen in Oregon, and yet we could in one year by a commendable dismissal of narrow minded prejudice on the part of our farmers create an agricultural display that would not only eclipse anything the Hoosiers can do but we could astonish the world.

Our resources are not developed beyond their infancy, and yet we could to-day surpass anything I saw in the East by a 1000 per cent The difference is that there the farmers attend to these matters here they sit on the fence and make fun of the man who takes his family and encourage the state fair by camping on the ground for a week and helping swell the display of stock and other products

What I am considering is aptly illustrated by Mr Alexander Kunz, a poultry man of Washington county In Wednesday's OREGONIAN he has a communication, whose general tenor and drift is to cast discredit on the poultry raisers of Oregon as a class The same communication appears in the current number of the Pacific Farmer, word for word as it appears in THE OREGONIAN The simultaneous appearance of these peculiar form of advertising one's own business in an expensive way, drew my attention to Mr King as a prominent(?) poultry breeder, more especially as he characterizes the "fraternity in Oregon as including many unworthy "to be classed among honest breeders," presumably because they "make a great deal of noise in the papers with flashish advertisements," etc. Mr. Kunz advertises that he has "1000 pullets and cockerels for sale," so when I was examining the poultry display at the fair to-day, I gave only a passing glance at what I considered merely an ordinary exhibition in that line, as I was so eager to see Mr. Kunz's department, but a little inquiry elicited the astonishing information that he had not a single "pullet or cockerel" on the ground, though the pavilion was well filled with circular cards announcing the wonderful extent of his business

There are seven poultry breeders who have unusually creditable exhibitions here and are doing what they can to advertise their business in a way that will benefit not only themselves but the entire state as well They have fine fowls and are quite willing that people should see them

Mr Kunz is not alone Salem even has many business men who are blind to the best interests of themselves and their town The state fair gets no help in encouragement of any kind from them and the farmers go drifting along utterly oblivious of the fact that God helps those who help themselves

FACTS FOR THIRD PARTY MEN

An Open Letter to Dr John A Brooks Prohibition Candidate for Vice President

Rev D R Lucas of Des Moines Iowa a prominent clergyman of the Christian denomination and one of the foremost temperance workers of the state, had addressed to Dr John A Brooks the following open letter concerning the attitude of the third party men in the pending campaign Many facts so fully warranted in speaking for Iowa temperance men for he has done much to protect practical temperance legislation in this state of any movement

His response appears in some of your reported speeches and things that ought not to be uttered to those prohibitionists who do not look at the question as you do. You have much to say of conscience votes and men of conscience and such like epithets which you utter that prohibitionists who do not agree with you will go to a third party movement are not acting according to their conscientious convictions Are you and I not co-workers in the same church and acting together religiously it is a query to me when you become the keeper of the consciences of your brethren

You do yourself a gross injustice as well as other men when you assume any such position for certainly where there are five prohibitionists who will not vote your ticket for every one who will it comes with poor grace with one to charge he five to acting hypocritically in their decision Now I have, as you well know been a prohibitionist all my life, and it is not saying anything in an egotistic sense I say I have done as much for the cause of prohibition as you have You have been in Missouri for many years where the democratic party has been in a large majority, and you have been a member of that party, and what have you done in that party or with your third party to get prohibition Absolutely nothing

I have been in Iowa, and a member of the republican party and worked in that line and with what result? What have one of the best prohibition laws in Iowa that has ever been made and it is as well enforced as any other law, I have followed no ignis fatuus of third party impracticability You have Now what is the result? My state is prohibitory yours is not, and yet, forsooth because I cannot conscientiously follow your method that has proven a failure, and abandon my own that has proven a success, I am to be accounted as lacking in conscience Did you ever think, my brother, that it is possible you are mistaken and that the beam may be in thine own eye?

Again, we have 150,000 prohibitionists in Iowa Of that number 149 000 will vote for the republican ticket and 1000 for your third party ticket Allow me to suggest that it is probable that the 149 may be as wise and honest as the one It is true one man may be wiser than 149 but it is not very good taste nor very good morals for the one to say that he is the only honest one

And what is true of the state of Iowa is true the country over, As I said before, you cannot positively hope to poll more than one-fifth the actual prohibition vote for your ticket, and is it not possible that the four who refuse to vote it may be as wise and conscientious as the one who does? When you say they are not, you are violating one of the cardinal principles of the religion we both profess to judge not thy brother"

While I am at this matter there are a few other things to which I wish to call your attention, The only states in which prohibition is in statu quo to-day are republican states, and yet you make your fight against the republican party and your leaders assert that they have no hope of electing your ticket, but you wish to defeat the republican party so that the prohibition party may take its place in 1892! Very well look at the result. You break down prohibition where it is already established for you concede that the democratic party is opposed to the principle You make enemies with all men in the republican party by your fight against them and what is the result? You keep a free whisky democratic party in power for a generation at least.

But you begin to compare yourself to the abolitionists, pretty nearly as we studied history to little advantage if you can see anything in that If the abolition party had continued on its radical ground what would have been the result? Slavery would have been national to-day for if Abraham Lincoln had taken his stand on a platform of absolute abolition he would have been defeated and slavery would have been more firmly rooted than ever So the good sense of the people said, we will prohibit slavery in the territories where we have jurisdiction and leave the matter to the states, and on this principle they were voted

So if Mr Harrison had stepped on a radical prohibition platform at Chicago he would have been defeated and whisky entrenched for a generation But as he is on the common ground in favor of local government on the matter by the states while adopting the general principle of temperance in all ways, or rather on anti saloon ground he will be elected and the great temperance reform will move on Why cannot you be as wise as the old abolitionist who supported Fremont and Lincoln on a less radical platform than they deemed exactly right

You may talk of conscience and all that, but conscience without common sense is only fanaticism in a republic like ours. It troubles my conscience to think that the only obstacle in the way of ultimate prohibition is the utter impracticality of those who blindly put out a hopeless ticket to stop the progress of events to that end Besides your party is not acting on a high moral plane You confess that the democratic party is opposed to prohibition and that you intend to oppose it after you have beaten the republican party When, my good brother did you accept the principle, we will do evil that good may come? You will put the devil in power that you may fight him Verily if that is conscience I am thankful I have none of that kind

I will not burden you with the many inconsistencies of your opposition to the republican party. Because the republican party says that rather than break down the protective tariff system they would, in a contingency, repeal the tax on liquors, you abuse them, or rather your spokesmen do and call them the "free whisky party," when in the very platform on which you stand there is a declaration in favor of the unconditional and immediate repeal of that tax Does your conscience indorse such an inconsistency? If it does I am happy to say mine does not

Believing, as I do, that your movement is an injury and a foe to the cause of prohibition, I can only hope and pray and vote for the success of the republican party Wishing you success in all laudable work for the cause of righteousness, I subscribe myself very kindly and fraternally your brother, D R LUCAS

A Fight to the Death.
San Francisco Call.

Senator Vest is reported to have written to a democratic campaign club at St Louis Mr Cleveland, by his message, for which I sincerely honor him has challenged the protected industries of the country to a fight of extermination The fight is to the death" General Harrison, in his letter of acceptance, says "The assault upon our protective system is open and defiant Protection is assailed as unconstitutional in law, or as vicious in principle" Senator Vest and General Harrison are not far apart in their interpretation of Mr Cleveland's free-trade message They differ radically however, in their opinion of the democratic assault upon protected industries Mr. Vest thinks it better for the country that these protected industries be killed. General Harrison thinks they ought to be preserved He thinks it better for the country that the work of manufacturing be done at home, Senator Vest would let such lives as can survive competition with the cheap labor of Europe and Asia.

LIVE STOCK

Sheep and Cattle—Several Important Varieties Well Represented

The exhibit of sheep this year has not been as large as usual either in variety or number but those on exhibition were all of very high character conforming the opinion that to-day people can purchase in Oregon as per active look of every class character and grade above be purchased in any country there is no way to put on this point the stamp of 1888 removes that doubt

Perhaps in which the best pictures from the want of system in the arrangement of the live stock generally but in the cattle, sheep and swine particularly so lonely come, planned of by all except Instead of each class and grade being placed consecutively one after the other in the stables and pens with the owner's name placed conspicuously at the head of his exhibit all kinds cattle, sheep, colts and swine have been jumbled up together promiscuously making it impossible for any one inquirers visitors or purchasers to obtain the information required The least useful men on the grounds when information was required were the men riding about on horseback with red sashes round their shoulders The great advantage of a state fair is that people at home and abroad may know the character and extent of the exhibition thoroughly but under existing arrangements it is simply impossible to get up a thorough report even for THE OREGONIAN the power of which all classes freely admit This remissness has also been found in the owners of stock who are seldom round to give the information they alone can give in reliable form It is hoped these blunders will be avoided another year for Salem suffers from it most of all

SHEEP

As has been said the exhibits this year were not as large or numerous as formerly but they were all good The best lot is that of L F Mascher of Silverton a flock of eight Shropshire downs a sheep rising rapidly in estimation in all countries where progress and improvement are held necessary in breeding They are a handsome sheep with large heavy, square bodies and invariably black faces and legs No single "black sheep has ever been known among the flocks of the Shropshire downs

The display as fine and is the original and only Shropshire down flock in Oregon

One ewe, Daisy Redpath, at the head of the herd, was imported from England six years ago A young ram from her lambed last February would dress sixty five pounds to-day On Oregon pastures these sheep dress from 85 to 100 pounds and give heavy fleeces One of Mr Mascher's woolly ewes cut a fleece weighing nineteen pounds

Mr Mascher is very energetic in his business raising graded stock sheep and Jersey cattle of the Stoke Pogis and St Lambert breeds

W J Humphreys, Marion A flock of nine lead a cross between the Yorkshire and Merino, five yearlings and four lambs A ram's fleece of this cross runs from 12 to 15 pounds, and the mutton is acknowledged to be good On the average Oregon pastures they will dress from 85 to 95 pounds generally

Whitcomb Hillsboro shows a flock of seven four pure Spanish Merinos and two Cotswolds Both varieties are very fine, he Cotswold especially

Henry Savage, Salem a flock of ten Spanish Merinos, graded and all good

John Craig of Aumsville, has a flock of six graded Cotswolds all very fine. Several attempts were made to interview both Mr Savage and Mr Craig, but without success

John Minto, Salem exhibits a flock of thirty head of American Merinos A large portion of these are mutton, the idea among prominent breeders being that the horn has to go from all animals in domestic life, and Mr Minto is a strong believer in the advantages of this new departure. Breeding will reduce bone in the bodies of beef cattle and there seems no valid reason why, properly tried it should not take the horn from a ram's head If it comes to be a thing on the point breeding may be backed safely Mr Minto's sheep had a complete entry for all prizes

J W West Salem shows a flock of nine Leicesters and Spanish Merinos—three pure Leicesters and six graded between the Leicesters and Merinos

These Leicesters, for their age are very fine The ram, 2 years old and the ewes, yearlings, if dressed to-day, fed on average Oregon pastures would go 125 pounds and the ewes go 90 pounds each If those are no crack sheep where are crack sheep to be found?

The sex graded, as mentioned, form a grand animal the Leicester making the size for meat, and the Merinos improving the wool Ordinarily in Oregon they will shear a fleece from twelve to fifteen pounds and dress at two years old from seventy five to eighty pounds. In England and Canada the average fleece is not over eight pounds, so that when wool brings a fair price in the market, the Oregon farmer may see where his advantages come in The average is about the same in meat. These two ewes have taken three premiums—first as lambs and the next two years as ewes They are barely three years old yet It always pays to raise good stock.

AYRSHIRE CATTLE

Thomas H Tongue, Hillsboro — This gentleman exhibited a fine herd of Ayrshire cattle, the only cattle of the kind at the fair Failing to meet your reporter at two yards some days since it is only to-day, Friday he gave the information required about them Mr Tongue, however, occupies too prominent a position among the Oregon cattle breeders to be omitted

This herd consists of ten all thoroughbred, and a very fine lot they are

Baron Merryton, the bull, by Lord Merryton, dam Myrtle Bess, is five years old and weighs 1300 pounds He is remarkably docile and gentle The sire of this bull was bred by Mr Contis formerly of California, who first introduced the Holsteins into that state and the dam was imported from Canada He is a very perfect and beautiful animal.

A bull two years old, not yet named, by Budgvic, imported from New York and owned by Mr Tongue, from Rose Stewart is a large proportioned and promising young animal Another yearling bull is also of very fine proportions

Of the cows Rose Stewart, at the head of the farm, thirteen years old, of pure blood and registered, is a real beauty. Those who now where to look for the evidences of milking capacity will find it very strongly developed in this cow, and her milk produces not only either her pedigree nor formation Her milk record is fifty pounds a day

Bessie M is another fine cow The young stock is also very promising and all choice animals As especially good amongst these may be mentioned two year-old heifers and a yearling heifer Mr Tongue takes his share of prizes

THE GRAND PARADE

This interesting feature of a state fair, which seems to have so much attraction for all classes, owing to the heavy rain on Thursday, was postponed until to-day (Friday) when the latter was everything that could be desired—a perfect Oregon day of bright sky, warm sun and pure air In every respect, as might be imagined from the excellence of the stock present, the parade was extremely interesting and drew together an immense crowd, who evidently appreciated the grand sight of animal life passing before their eyes—animal life of the highest type, of almost every clime and every form in domestic life. To the lover of the beautiful in symmetry, spirit and movement, with its varying, kaleidoscopic changes of color and action, it is a very interesting and instructive sight, as in these fleeting movements are seen the animals exhibited to their highest advantage. At the present hour, when Oregon is asserting herself before the world for the first time in her history as the coming country of the age for her limitless agricultural resources, exquisite climate and endless mines the parade was unusually gratifying as all who beheld it whether to the "manor born" or not could see for themselves the triumphs in domestic life she has already achieved under great disadvantages in the past and more perfect triumphs the state will yet achieve, when she is known to the world as she has every right to be known In some things the parade might have been better but as illustrative of the future of the state it was as nearly perfect as could be To those of her people whose best lives and energies have been passed in bringing about this success the parade must have been very encouraging as showing the solid foundation of endless prosperity they have laid for their children and children's children After all the shimmer and glint of personal interests and personal success this is the great triumph of man's life To those from distant states who saw the parade it will be a useful lesson of Oregon's capacities and her inevitable prosperity in future and they may return to their homes in climes less blessed satisfied that in the Pacific Empire of wealth and power growing up Oregon has a prominent and determined position which none but the fool would question

PORTLAND, SATURDAY, SEPT. 22.

ON FALSE PRETENSES.

Among the most earnest supporters of Mr. Cleveland is Henry George. Mr. George's paper, the Standard, is devoted wholly to advocacy of Cleveland's re-election on straight free-trade principles. It points with delight to the fact that "Mr. Cleveland (in his letter of acceptance) nowhere used the terms 'our protective system,' 'our American system of protection,' save as quoting the name by which the republicans call the thing he has so clearly designated as robbery." For, continues the Standard, "not only do his arguments in the message, like his arguments in the letter, go, when carried to their logical conclusions, to the utter destruction of the idea that protection can benefit the people, but they go even further—to the conclusion that all tariff taxes should be abolished and the public revenues raised by direct taxation." It is admitted that "Mr. Cleveland does not press his arguments to their conclusions." He is still obliged to throw in "a strong dash of 'taffy' for those democrats yet in the bonds of protectionist superstition. Protection democrats profess to be reassured by it. Let us congratulate them. For our part we could ask nothing more."

This is an entirely correct analysis of Cleveland's letter. That is, the letter is a most dishonest one. It is intended, as Mr. George so plainly shows, to be a mis eading one; yet he and others enthusiastically commend it, because it is so written as to promise all they want, and yet to conceal the author's real purpose from those who are unwilling to believe that he is striking at the principle of protection.

It is perfectly plain that the democratic party is before the country on a platform of false pretenses. Statements like the above from Mr. George's Standard should focalize public attention on this fact. Since Mr. Cleveland is plainly for free trade, it is disingenuous in him to deny it. He takes his stand on the fundamental maxims of free trade, argues with vehemence that protection is robbery, and more than this, that all tariff duties not only add to the prices of the imported articles on which they are levied, but also add to the prices of articles of the same kind produced within the country, constituting a burden as certain and inevitable as though annually collected from each individual by the tax gatherer; and yet he denies that he has "entered upon a crusade of free trade," and hotly remonstrates against what he calls the "misrepresentation of opponents," who point out the tendency of his argument and show its logical and inevitable result. Here, however, is an earnest supporter, who points out the same thing. Mr. Cleveland is a free trader, but denies it; he declares that protection is robbery, yet denies that he would take off protective duties to an extent that would strip labor of protection. The position is a false one. It is a dishonest one. Its object is to deceive. That this is its object his free-trade supporters like Henry George admit. But they accept it as a political expedient, for a campaign purpose.

If Mr. Cleveland is not a free trader, why his labored assault on protection? Why his argument to prove that tariff duties are indefensible and oppressive? If his argument is sound, free trade is the right thing and needs no apology. But he presents the free trade argument, and then says: "We propose no crusade of free trade." This undoubtedly is only a bait, as Henry George says, for protectionist voters.

No object should be pursued on a false pretense. It is immoral, unjustifiable, and should not be tolerated. Honest free traders should feel that they cannot afford to approve the course Cleveland pursues. They who advocate free trade should put the subject before the country plainly, without deception, and on its naked merits. An effort to mislead and deceive, led by a president of the United States, degrades politics and tends to debauchery of the conscience of the country. It should be signally rebuked. There is no censure too severe for a man in high office who argues and intends one thing, yet professes another. Yet this notoriously is the position now occupied by Grover Cleveland, president of the United States and candidate on false pretenses for re-election.

OUTLINE FOR A VETO.

Through his own demagogic trickery, employed for campaign purposes, Cleveland has now received the bill that he was so anxious should not come into his hands—the bill for exclusion of Chinese from the United States, in violation of existing treaty stipulations. The best thing he can now do is to write a message admitting that he had the bill drawn up and passed through the house as a campaign trick; that he expected the republicans to stop it in the senate, but they did not, and therefore, since the trick has failed and it is an unseemly thing to make the relations of friendly foreign nations a foot ball of home politics, it is necessary to veto the bill.

It is a bill that certainly ought to be vetoed; and a message in this form would put the veto on proper and truthful grounds. Mr. Cleveland could add that there is no excuse for violating the treaties of the country for the sake of partisan advantage; that when he caused this bill to be carried through the house it was no part of his plan or purpose to violate the national faith, but simply to get up a good campaign cry, and that the republicans of the senate very much disappointed him by not stopping the bill as he expected and desired. Therefore, since the bill ought not to become a law, at least till it be seen whether China will not ratify the pending exclusion treaty, a veto (he can add) is the correct thing; and moreover he might very properly assure the country that he would attempt no more campaign tricks, but await with such dignity as he could assume the result of the voting in November.

Of course he might administer to the senate a sharp rebuke for putting him in this embarrassing position, by not stopping his bill as he expected it to do; but, since that body had not stopped it and had not given him thereby the advantage of the political trick he had devised, he could say that he had made up his mind to stop it himself.

—A dispatch just received states that the president has information that China has rejected the exclusion treaty. If this proves true the president may sign the bill. But he can still read the senate a lecture for not stopping the bill, as he expected it to do. As a victim of misplaced confidence he is entitled to some kind of reparation. His political opponents didn't do the fair thing when they allowed his demagogy to recoil on his own head.

A COAL FAMINE.

The San Francisco Call thus explains the reason of the scarcity and high price of coal in that city:

Last year a party of speculators undertook to corner the wheat market in California, and put wheat up to such prices that it could not be exported to Liverpool. The consequence was that vessels coming here from England or Australia with cargoes of coal could not get return freights, and the coal freighters not yielding profit enough to enable vessels to sail out of San Francisco in ballast imports of coal stopped, the Vancouver coal miners were able to control the market, hence the price of Wellington rose from $12 to $20, the cost of living was increased, and manufacturing industry received a setback.

Scarcity in San Francisco, with extreme prices resulting from scarcity, affects the market on the whole coast. Again, there is a struggle now between the railroads and their employes; neither will give way, and coal is being shipped from Cardiff to Melbourne. Hence there is no prospect of shipments from Australia. Coal is now selling at retail in San Francisco for $20 a ton. The Examiner thinks the price will go to $25, and the Call advises people to go back to the use of wood, as far as possible, and to do it at once.

THE LOGIC OF IT.

A letter from a British peer is published in the current number of the North American Review written to an American friend who had sent him a copy of the Mills bill. This educated Englishman writes that he finds the Mills bill to be "a somewhat timid and tottering advance to free trade, but showing that America has at last turned her back to the mischievous teachings of your Websters and your Clays."

This Englishman boasts that England imports labor from Belgium and other continental countries and is thus enabled to defy the combinations of its working men; he thinks the only effect of our high wages is to encourage poor people to live above their station and crave the real and unattainable luxuries of the rich; he is amused at the fierce denial of our democratic journals that theirs is a free trade party or that they are inclined to become free traders, yet nothing seems to him "more inevitable than that the logic of events will force the democratic party to take decisive grounds in favor of absolute free trade, and he predicts "the triumph of the free trade party led by your present president—a man who in the soundness of his views reminds me of the best type of English statesmanship." This British peer argues that America should seek only to be the farmer or food-producer of nations, should devote her energy chiefly to increasing her crops and extending her market for them, while England, incapable of raising food for her people, bends her brains to hold her position as the chief manufacturer of the world. "Let America grow and England manufacture," is this British peer's expression for what he terms the "true policy of both of the great branches of our Anglo-Saxon race." This British peer regards Cleveland as "the ablest and bravest president in all your royal line."

This letter is interesting as proof that educated Englishmen construe the Mills bill and Cleveland's message as the enunciation of an economic philosophy, which cannot stop short of absolute free trade; but there is nothing new in the idea that it is the true industrial mission of America to grow and England to manufacture. That is as old as Lord Brougham, who after the close of the war of 1812-15 spoke of the "rising manufactures in the United States which the war had forced into existence contrary to the natural course of things"—that is, that the natural course of things was for America to farm and feed the world, while England did its manufacturing.

When President Monroe in 1824 recommended additional protection there appeared an article in the Encyclopedia Britannica which was evidently intended as an answer to his argument. This article declared it was a misapplication of American capital and industry to withdraw them from their present employment in extending the cultivation of the soil and circulating its products to force them into manufacturing concerns supported by protection. Before America can carry on manufactures her vast tracts of unoccupied land must be stocked." The British peer in 1888 has only rehashed and rebrunished the argument of the British peer of 1816 and the Encyclopedia Britannica of 1824. England seventy years ago tried to persuade us that it would be better for us if we were all cultivators of the soil and compelled to buy all our manufactured goods of Great Britain than to undertake to manufacture them at home, and that is just what this Rip-Van-Winkle British peer tells us to-day through the North American Review.

This philosophy was accepted by the Calhoun party in 1833 when McDuffie of the ways and means committee declared that foreign markets were the "natural markets" for the cotton-growing states and that it was "unjust and unnatural to obstruct or impede the free intercourse of the Southern planters with their natural markets abroad." That was the political economy of the South that followed the leadership of Calhoun and his political heirs and assigns from 1828 to 1861; it was the political economy that was cast into the constitution of the Confederate states; it is the political economy of the Solid South to-day. It was preached by the British statesmen of 1816; it was announced by the British political economists of 1821; and it is reiterated by the British statesmen of 1888. The South has always accepted it since 1828, and holds to it to-day; the North repudiated it and is not likely to accept it to-day at the hands of a "British peer," who repeats Lord Brougham and Calhoun.

THE STATE OF THE CANVASS.

The independent journals of large circulation, influence and character that support Cleveland because he is a free trader may be fairly quoted as to the present outlook for the election of their candidate. The Boston Herald frankly confesses that thus far the elections in Oregon, Vermont and Maine do not indicate democratic gains as going on in other states. The Herald thinks that New York is likely to go for Cleveland, but says there were points in his favor four years ago in Indiana, Connecticut and New Jersey that do not now exist. The Herald further admits that the republicans have thus far had good success in keeping down the prohibitionist vote in Vermont and Maine and says that if this falling away of the prohibitionist vote shall enter into New York and New Jersey as well it may have an important effect on the general result." There are 20,000 prohibitionists in New Jersey, 43,000 in New York state and nearly 5000 in Connecticut. If there should be the same relative reduction in the prohibition vote in these doubtful states Harrison will be elected beyond a doubt.

Thus far the record shows that Oregon has cast this year the greatest republican majority of her history; that Vermont has cast the greatest republican majority she ever polled for her state ticket, not excepting the year 1868, when Grant was first nominated for president; that Maine has cast her largest republican plurality since 1876, save in 1884, when Mr. Blaine, the favorite son of Maine, was the candidate for president.

The democracy try to whistle the result of the state elections thus far down the wind, and their last effort to divert attention from the real key to the conflict is a pretended confidence that they expect to carry Illinois, Minnesota, Nevada and Michigan. The republicans in 1880 carried every Northern state except California, Nevada and New Jersey, and in 1884 they carried every Northern state except Indiana, Connecticut, New Jersey and New York. A change of 800 votes would have defeated Cleveland in New York, and a change of less than 700 votes would have lost him Connecticut. The republican pluralities in Western states at the last national election were 45,000 in Michigan, 25,000 in Illinois, 16,000 in Wisconsin, 41,000 in Minnesota. The vote for St. John in these states was, Michigan 18,403, Minnesota 4634, Illinois 12,074, and Wisconsin 7556. It is perfectly clear that the democracy have not the slightest ground to claim any of these states for Cleveland, and it is entirely probable that, with the expected reduction in the prohibition vote the republican majorities in these states will exceed those of 1884. The democrats know this and are only making a racket in the sure republican states at the West to divert attention from the really doubtful states, which are New York, New Jersey and Connecticut. This advantage that the republicans have in this struggle can be seen by glancing at the following analysis of the presidential situation which we find in the New York Sun (dem.):

Necessary for a choice	201
Southern democratic states	153
Needed for Cleveland and Thurman	48
New York	36
New Jersey	9
Connecticut	6
	51
New York	36
Indiana	15
	51

Should Gen. Harrison carry Indiana the democrats must carry New York, New Jersey and Connecticut in order to elect Cleveland. The democracy must carry New York and Indiana, or New York, New Jersey and Connecticut to win, while the republicans wishing Indiana and either New Jersey or Connecticut will be victorious without New York; or if they win New York can afford to lose Indiana, New Jersey and Connecticut.

TEXAS REPUBLICANS.

The Texas republicans are not disposed to go through the forms of a party canvass. Why? Because when it is not a farce of fraud it is a shotgun tragedy. Here are some facts that help to account for this determination of Texas republicans. One of the witnesses before the senate committee on privileges and elections, when it was investigating election outrages and political murders in Texas last session, was Joseph Hoffman, an American citizen by birth, the son of German parents, a republican ex-Union soldier, who had marched with Sherman from Atlanta to the sea. After giving his testimony Hoffman returned to his home in Washington county, Texas, which is a portion of the congressional district of Roger Q. Mills, author of the democratic tariff bill. Some months ago Hoffman was again summoned by the senate to appear before its committee and give further testimony. He told the senate officer who served the subpena that he was afraid to obey the summons; that his life had been threatened because of his former testimony, and that to go again to Washington would be to sign his own death warrant. On the 3d inst. Hoffman, who was the republican assessor of his county, and a candidate for re-election, was shot down in cold blood, riddled to death with a charge of buckshot, which accidentally wounded a democrat with whom the murdered man was conversing at the time. Senator Spooner of Wisconsin, on the 12th inst., arose in the senate and recited the details of Hoffman's murder. Spooner read a private letter written by Hoffman to a friend shortly before the murder. In this letter Hoffman wrote that he felt that his life was in danger because of his candidacy, but he considered it his duty to the cause of republicanism to run. He had been warned to leave the county, but he would not do so, and he mentioned incidentally that his mother-in-law in the name of his nine motherless children was urging him to withdraw from politics lest they be deprived of his support. Senator Spooner denounced the murder of Hoffman as the "infamous assassination of a German-American citizen who had dared to be a republican in Texas, this brave Joe Hoffman, who wanted to live but was not permitted to do so because of his political opinions. He was not even a 'nigger,' but a German soldier who had fought for the Union;" and closed by offering a resolution directing an investigation into the murder of this witness who was under the protection of a subpena of the senate. The murder of Hoffman is fresh illustration of the methods by which the South has forced the present extraordinary political situation under which Oregon sends one representative with 60,207 votes—33,379 more than Georgia gives her ten.

BRITAIN, CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES.

England would be just as strong for self-defense, if not stronger, if Canada and the United States were one, as she is to-day, for the United States and England have no possible prospect of war with each other, near or remote. Our relations are never again likely to be strained as severely as they were during the civil war and during the settlement of the Alabama claims. England has some reason to be on her guard against Russia or Germany, but the United States, while it might never be her ally, is sure not to be her enemy, but is likely always to be her friend. England and America, with a common speech and literature, with laws that lead back to the same fountain head, with institutions that are a noble defence of human liberty, have no causes of quarrel. They cannot afford to be enemies. They must be friends, for under their flags the best civilization of the world has achieved its greatest triumphs, marching with varying speed different roads to the same goal of the largest liberty under law for the greatest number.

We have said that England would be stronger for self-defense without Canada. This is true, because it is not worth while for England to cling to this great colony, when the time is past for jealousy or dread of hostility on the part of the United States. Canada is but a bill of expense to England. Canada in the hands of the United States would strengthen England's most powerful natural friend, while in event of a continental war, in which England should be involved, Canada would not be a source of strength to England. It would only be another distant position to guard from invasion by a powerful enemy. England was obliged to wrest Canada from France. She was justified in holding on to Canada, so long as there was any reasonable ground for rating the United States as a hostile power, but with the disappearance of American hostility England has only a sentimental, not a political justification for clinging to Canada. Russia or Germany at war with England would strike at Canada as a British colony, and compel the home government to detach a large force for its defense. As part of the American Union Canada would only strengthen England's best friend, and England would be relieved from a severe financial burden in peace, and a serious responsibility in time of war.

Democratic papers are boasting that in Augusta, Maine, where Blaine lives, the republican majority at the recent election was cut down heavily, as compared with that of September, 1884. This simply means that Blaine was stronger than his party in his own city, as he was also stronger than his party throughout his own state. But he was weaker than his party almost everywhere else, and his aggregate majorities in the states carried for him fell far below the aggregate of the majorities in the same states for Garfield. In every state except Maine, and possibly California, we look for better results for Harrison than were shown for Blaine. The truth is that Blaine did not carry his party vote, nor anything near it—though he did exceptionally well in Maine, where the people in voting for him thought to give their state a "benefit."

Judge Thurman in addressing a delegation of colored people at Columbus last Thursday afternoon did not take the trouble to repeat his statement that "the negro is a prolific animal." He contented himself with saying that he had been a friend to the colored man ever since the colored man has had a vote, and that he was glad to see that some of them will vote the democratic ticket. He also expressed himself as feeling very fearful that the republican party dawned to make the colored people political bondmen, and while he endeavored to show that the republicans had sought to give the colored men the elective franchise in the South, only because they hoped thereby to carry the South, he did not explain why the South remains democratic, notwithstanding that the colored people have a majority in many parts of the South and the constitutional right to vote. He didn't explain what becomes of the colored republican vote in the hands of democratic counters.

Some half dozen stockholders in the Lake Signal Company at Indianapolis have brought suit for appointment of a receiver, alleging fraud on the part of the management. This is the paper that has been paraded all over the country as the great labor organ of Indiana, that had "repudiated" Gen. Harrison. It is charged by the complainants that Gruelle and Bodenmiller, the managers of the paper, are "unprincipled demagogues, who have dictated the policy of the paper and bartered its alleged political influence," and that the defendants "have received therefor large sums which they have converted to their own use." A hearing has been ordered by the court. It is notorious at Indianapolis that this so-called labor organ has been heavily subsidized for the campaign by the democratic state and national committees. It doesn't utter, therefore, the voice of labor, but the voice of two venal managers.

After monkeying with the returns for nearly three weeks the democracy of Arkansas have "saved the state" by a majority of 11,081. This they give out as "official." But it is known that the returns were falsified to the extent of nearly 20,000 votes. Crittenden county furnishes an example. That county has a large majority of colored voters, and regularly in state elections during twenty years has given republican majorities ranging from 1400 to 2000. The former figure was the republican majority on governor in 1886. But now the democracy have made a return for themselves of a majority of 1450 in the county. Work like this was done in nearly all parts of the state. It was not intended at first to "win by the count," since it was not regarded as necessary; but the vote of "The Wheel" surprised the democracy, and the state had to be "saved" by the only effective method that remained.

That the Union Pacific Company intends to build a line from Huntington through Southeastern Oregon into Northern California is very evident, and that it will be of great benefit to this state cannot be doubted. Especially Baker, Crook, Lake, Grant and Klamath counties—which are rich in resources, the products of which the world will always afford a market for—will be especially developed by such a line. The fact that the Southern and Central Pacific Companies have direct outlets, exclusive of their Union Pacific connections, at the very nucleus of the Union Pacific's Eastern starting point, and that the Union Pacific, in order to be thoroughly independent of its California rival, must have an independent outlet in California, is a potent reason, even were there not other very strong ones, why the road through Southeastern Oregon will be built at no distant day.

The California College of Agriculture, connected with the State University has according to the annual report, one regular student and five special students—an attendance which seems rather slim, but then it has sixteen professors, six instructors and six assistant instructors—a fact which shows that the regular student and his five special fellow-students will have remarkable advantages in the way of instruction. Of course, the law, medical and theological departments of the university are crowded with students, as are those of all other universities, and this shows that the time is rapidly approaching when there will be more lawyers than clients, more doctors than patients, more preachers than proselytes, and that farms will remain in the hands of only those who are willing to work them.

Rev. H. K. Hines, D. D., retires this week from the editorial chair of the Pacific Christian Advocate, after a service of eight years therein. During this period Dr. Hines has also performed a great deal of itinerant ministerial service. Few men have worked as hard as he, and none more conscientiously. As a writer and editor Dr. Hines made a reputation long ago. His work has been familiar to the fraternity of the press more than thirty years, and both as editor and preacher his name is known as widely as any other throughout the Northwest. Dr. Hines makes no announcement as to future work, but it is probable intends to seek for a time the rest needed after so many years of hard labor. Rev. W. S. Harrington, D. D., will succeed him as editor of the Advocate.

Employes of the federal branch treasury, in San Francisco, are giving information that the administration party is assessing them an entire month's wages for democratic campaign purposes. Government employes at Mare Island navy yard report that they have been assessed 12 per cent. of a month's wages, with instructions that two more assessments will be levied before election day, and from federal officers all over the state of California similar complaints are coming, with inquiries as to what has become of civil service reform. Under the Cleveland regime it seems that public office is a public trust—for the benefit of the democratic high officials, and that offensive partisan activity is its strongest support.

There will be a tidal wave of emigration from the Mississippi valley to Oregon and Washington territory after the election. Thousands of men are holding off from moving until that time on account of the unusual interest in the presidential campaign—there being a special desire to vote on this occasion. Besides the harvesting and marketing of crops is necessary to them for the securing of the additional funds needed for the journey. These matters having been arranged the flood of immigration will be very great the coming winter and spring, and the movers are to be congratulated.

The republicans of San Francisco will make a demonstration in the way of a parade to-night which will give some idea of what the Pacific coast thinks of the free-trade and Solid-South doctrines of the democracy. It will speak by banners, transparencies and devices, borne by thousands upon thousands of wage-earners and other men interested in the industries of the country, and especially the Pacific coast. The wool men will be there in force, and altogether it is estimated that there will be 15,000 voters in line.

Miss Minnie Freeman, the Nebraska school teacher who was made famous by heroically saving some children in a blizzard, has come to the Pacific coast to live. She doesn't want to increase her fame in that way. The blizzards, cyclones, droughts, grasshoppers, heat and cold of the Nebraska region are doing much toward increasing the Pacific coast population, thereby exemplifying the adage, "It's an ill wind that blows nobody good."

The Northern states which have held elections this year show that both republicans and democrats are voting with full force, but the outcome so far cannot justify the democrats in the claim of carrying a single Northern state.

The fruits and vegetables on the Portland market now, displayed in vast piles in front of commission houses and sold by green grocers for domestic use in quantities to suit for a family of two or a hotel, would astonish Eastern people. The commonest of these fruits and vegetables would take all the premiums in Eastern agricultural fairs if they were home-grown there.

It is said that Thurman will not be called upon to make any more speeches in the campaign. The "Old Roman" and his bandeau were a short-lived campaign sensation.

CARTWRIGHT'S MISTAKE.

By Charles W. Chestnutt.

I was sitting on the hotel piazza, following with my glass the movements of a steamer in the offing As she disappeared around a distant bend of the shore, I turned my head toward the left, from which I heard footsteps approaching My gaze rested upon the portly figure of a gentleman who stood a short distance from me, his hand resting on top of the balustrade. My eye instinctively settled upon the broad abdominal expanse which the skill of a fashionable tailor had not been able to prevent from being the most striking feature of the gentleman's appearance, for he was very fat

The gentleman evidently perceived the objective point of my glance, for he gave a faint apologetic sort of a smile, as though he were somewhat ashamed of himself, and advanced toward me

"Well, Walton" he said extending his hand, "don't you know me?

I had not recognized his figure but the voice was the familiar one of an old college friend

"Why, it's Cartwright! How are you old boy? I'm ever so glad to see you, I exclaimed, grasping his outstretched hand and shaking it with genuine pleasure I had been at this particular hotel of this particular seaside resort (which we will call Cliffdale) for two whole days without meeting a single acquaintance Cartwright's advent was a decided relief to what threatened to be a term of solitary exile instead of pleasant vacation There were many people at the hotel, but I am not much of a hand at making new acquaintances.

"No wonder you didn't recognize me," said Cartwright, glancing downward at himself as far as his waistband, which formed his horizon in that direction "I am getting so abominably fleshy that life is almost a burden to me I thought a course of sea bathing might reduce my weight somewhat, and so I concluded to run down here for a few weeks I'm ever so glad to meet you, Walton What have you been doing with yourself since we left old Yale?"

We conversed awhile on topics of mutual interest, and then went to walk along the beach Though Cartwright's weight as he informed me, was two hundred and fifty pounds, yet he was no mere vulgar bundle of adipose tissue He possessed a strong and vigorous mind, and carried his flesh in such a way that after the novelty of his appearance wore off it did not provoke mirth or even remark He was very well proportioned and while his chin was not disproportionate to the rest of his body, it had not put on the extra folds which disfigure so many fat people His walk was dignified, at least, if not graceful His frank good nature was irresistible

We parted at bedtime, to meet at breakfast next morning After a cigar on the piazza we took a stroll along the beach together A short distance from the hotel an open carriage dashed by in which were seated two ladies, one middle-aged and of rather distinguished appearance, the other young and beautiful I had scarcely time to lift my hat before the carriage had passed us

"What a beautiful girl!" exclaimed Cartwright, looking after the phaeton The hood was down and over it he could see the nodding plume of the young lady's hat "Who is she?"

"That," I replied, calmly, "is Miss Florence Gaylord, of Clearport She is rich and accomplished, her charms of person speak for themselves, she is an excellent catch, and so far as I can learn, is still unappropriated"

"She is certainly very beautiful," he rejoined, with a thoughtful air

The Gaylords, mother and daughter, had arrived at Cliffdale the night before and this was my first sight of them They were old acquaintances of mine We saw them every day during the next few weeks Cartwright became very attentive to Miss Gaylord, and it soon grew obvious that he was very much in love I do not know what tricks my own heart might have played me for Florence was very charming, but there was another young woman, then spending the summer in Europe, who had a first mortgage on my affections, and the arrangements had been made for a foreclosure shortly after her return in October I was therefore out of the race and Cartwright had nothing to fear from my rivalry Of course he would have had no chance whatever had I been in a position to enter the contest

I could see with half an eye that Miss Gaylord was partial to Cartwright She walked with him, talked with him rode with him danced with him—he could dance well in spite of his obesity, she sang to him and discussed books and authors with him for they were both cultivated people and fond of literature I could not see how any self respecting, modest young woman could offer a man more encouragement than she gave Cartwright

But he was singularly obtuse He labored under the impression that no woman could love him with a genuine affection

'No, Walton," he would say, "no young and pretty woman could love such a mountain of flesh as I am A widow with a large family, or an old maid who had exhausted all her hopes, might put up with me A young woman might pity me, and in her generosity seem to encourage me, but she wouldn't mean anything by it They smile on me for the same reason that they pat the back of a prize ox at a county fair"

"Nonsense," I said, "the woman who catches you will win a prize in the matrimonial lottery, and Florence Gaylord knows it You are worth half a dozen of these feather weight dudes who are fluttering around her"

'Yes,' he rejoined with a rueful smile 'I suppose I would be, by the pound"

One afternoon I strolled down the beach with a paper novel in my hand, and finding a comfortable seat in a rustic pagoda a little way from the hotel I settled myself for a quiet half hour I had not read more than one chapter when two ladies approached the pavilion and seated themselves on the other side of the lattice-work, vine-covered screen that divided the pavilion into two parts I was lying stretched upon the seat the back of which concealed the most of my body, while a mass of vines hid my head from observation I glanced up from my novel but did not stir nor did I recognize the ladies until one of them spoke with the voice of Florence Gaylord

I love Mr Cartright very much, and I think he loves me in return although he is awfully shy I mean to catch him if I can, though it sounds dreadfully vulgar for me to say so" She glanced around her quickly as she made this remark, but fortunately did not perceive me

Of course the proper thing for me to do would have been to make my presence known. But she had already spoken, and I had already heard, and I spared her blushes by remaining quiet, hoping they would go away before burdening my conscience with any further weight of ill-gotten information I could not now escape without being seen by them, the most I could do was to feign sleep, to provide against possible discovery.

"He is so ridiculously fat," said Mrs Gaylord, who was evidently on very familiar terms with her daughter, "that everybody will laugh at you for marrying him Charlie Puddinghead is just as rich, and much better looking, and is dying for you."

"Why, mamma! how shameful for you to speak of Mr Cartwright in that way! What you find fault with only makes him more attractive to me I have always intended to marry a fat man Charlie Puddinghead is no larger than a well grown sparrow Fat men are always good natured, and one can feel, during the storms of life, that one is anchored to something substantial, that the first rough wind of sorrow or misfortune will not blow away I despise lean men"

I could scarcely restrain my laughter at this unique confession I ought perhaps to have been angry, for I myself am lean almost to emaciation, but Miss Gaylord's views were too deliciously droll to wound my sensibilities

The ladies finally went away, and after waiting until they were some distance away, I went back to the hotel

I meant to tell Cartwright a part at least of what I had heard But he had latterly grown somewhat sensitive on the subject of his obesity, and I went up to my room after supper to meditate upon the best way in which to give him the benefit of what I had heard without disclosing too much or the exact manner in which I had acquired my information An hour or two later I went to his room, but he was not there, and I did not see him until morning

Walton, he exclaimed grasping my hand with painful warmth, 'congratulate me Florence has promised to be mine"

'I congratulate you from the bottom of my heart," I said, "I am sure you will be happy"

In my surprise at the suddenness of the announcement I had forgot all about the conversation I had overheard on the beach, which of course, was now of no consequence The lovers were quite as much absorbed in each other as lovers usually are, and I was left to a certain extent to my own devices I utilized my opportunity by making some sketches which I had planned but had up to this time been too lazy to execute

A few days after the announcement of his engagement Cartwright was called away from Cliffdale on urgent business He went immediately promising to return in two weeks

My vacation lasted somewhat longer than I had originally intended I was still at the hotel when the two weeks of Cartwright's expected absence had elapsed The Gaylords had been away a week visiting some friends, but had returned to the hotel, where they expected to remain until September When Cartwright had been away two weeks I received from him the following letter

My Dear Walton I shall be detained here a week or two longer than I expected I could perhaps finish up my business and get back sooner, but I am preparing a surprise for Florence and my other friends You will hardly guess the nature of it, but you will open your eyes when you see what it is Don't say any thing about it, for I mean it to be a complete surprise to the others

Yours, etc, D CARTWRIGHT

There was nothing in this mysterious communication that would afford a clue to the nature of the projected surprise. I said nothing to Miss Gaylord about the letter Cartwright himself kept her informed of his movements

The last two weeks of my vacation passed pleasantly enough A day or two before I left Cliffdale I received the following note from Cartwright

Dear Walton Will be down on the eight o'clock express Arrange it so that I can meet you alone with Florence and her mother Leave word with the clerk what room you are in Don't let them know you expect me Yours CARTWRIGHT,

More mystery, and no clue to unravel it As fortune would have it, I had received by express that morning a portfolio of etchings and engravings which I had purchased for a certain house I had built for a certain young woman (already mentioned) who was expected to return from Europe in a few weeks By some mistake they had been sent to me at the seaside I invited the ladies down to my sitting-room at 8 o'clock to look at the engravings, and left word at the clerk's desk that Mr Cartwright would find us there

The ladies came promptly They examined the pictures and criticised them with rare good taste for they had both traveled widely, and were familiar with art and the relative merit of artists

At a quarter past eight I heard a quick step, which sounded somewhat familiar, pass along the hall and stop at my door, at which there was a knock

'Come in'" I exclaimed.

The door was opened, and a gentleman stood in the doorway—a tall, symmetrical young man, without an ounce of superfluous flesh upon him, attired in a faultlessly fitted suit of gray tweed The ladies and I looked at him for a moment in puzzled curiosity, there was something familiar about him, though he was evidently a stranger There was no sign of recognition on the part of any one, nor could I imagine who he was until he spoke

"Well!" he exclaimed, "I thought I would surprise you!"

The wish was father to the thought, for do to that time we had not shown any signs of surprise

It was Cartright He beamed upon us in an ecstasy of pleasure, and laughed gleefully at our evident amazement as we realized who it was

Meanwhile I watched the effect of his changed appearance upon Florence She had started at the sound of his voice When the fact dawned fully upon her that the slender boy before her was but a few weeks before the man whom she loved she turned as pale as though she had seen a ghost.

"Mamma," she said, in a voice scarcely audible, "take me to my room The gentlemen will excuse us"

"Why, Florence"' answered her mother, "you will be better in a moment Mr Cartwright's return was so sudden You should have prepared us," she said, with a note of reproach, addressing Cartwright

"Take me to my room, please," urged Florence

Mrs Gaylord led her away with murmured excuses. Cartwright offered his arm to assist her

"No, thanks" she said, with a perceptible shudder, "mamma will help me"

When they had gone, Cartwright turned to me his face white and miserable, his elation all departed

"What does it all mean?" he groaned "I thought she would like it" He cast a comprehensive look over his altered person

'What have you been doing with yourself?' I inquired

"I've been under treatment for obesity," he replied "I found a famous physician, who has reduced my weight about half in four weeks But what's the matter with Florence?"

"The surprise was too great for her," I said "She will be all right in the morning"

But I remembered the conversation I had overheard on the beach, and I feared for the result of Cartwright's experiment

At 9 next morning Cartwright came into my room

"They have gone," he said, "read this."

He tossed me a little note, which I opened and read

Dear Mr Cartwright Pardon my seeming rudeness of last evening But permit me to explain it by saying that my feelings were beyond my control We leave this morning on the early train, and I beg of you to release me from my engagement It is difficult for me to express my meaning, but you are so different from when you were when we met and when we became engaged that it is hard to realise that you are the same person. I fear I could never be happy with you now. Feeling as I do, I think it best for us not to meet. I only wish you greater happiness than I could ever have brought you

FLORENCE GAYLORD.

THE WIZARD OF WALL ST.

Methods and Means Which Have Won Him Greatness—Early Business Speculations

Methods of Obtaining Control of Other People's Property Reduced to a Fine Art—How He Got the Western Union

Henry Clews in the New York Commercial Advertiser

If Fenimore Cooper Sir Walter Scott Charles Dickens or Dumas in the height of popularity of any of those great writers of fiction, had evolved from his inner consciousness a Jay Gould as the hero of a novel its readers would have found serious fault with the author for attempting to transcend the rational probability allowed to the attitude of fiction Few novel readers in fact would have patiently submitted to such a strain on their credulity prior to the era in the financial development in this country which produced some of the leading characters which Wall street has brought to the front as stern realities of every-day life since my advent in the arena of speculation

Among these Jay Gould is conspicuous and of all the self made men of Wall street he had probably the most difficulty in making the first thousand dollars of the amazing pile which he now controls

Jay Gould was born at Stratton Falls Delaware county New York about the year 1836 He was the son of John B Gould who kept a grocery store At the age of 16 young Gould became a clerk in a variety store belonging to Squire Burnham about two miles from the Fall Here in his leisure hours he assiduously improved the little learning he had received at the village school by applying himself to the study of bookkeeping in the evenings

It was when he was at this store according to the most reliable accounts that he manifested his natural aptitude for making sharp and profitable bargains His employer, the squire had his eye on a piece of land in Albany which he expected to obtain cheap and so make a profit He whispered his intention to some friend in the store, and his young assistant overheard him When he went to put his design of purchasing the land in execution he found that young Gould had been there before him and had secured the title

This natural inclination to buy out every concern with which he has been connected has been the ruling passion of his life and still tenaciously adheres to him Prior to his negotiations with the firm of surveyors, he had invented a mouse trap in his intervals of leisure in the store and with the proceeds and the bargain in the land out of which he had outwitted his employer he was enabled to make himself master of the situation with the surveyors Shortly after this came a man named Loup, who owned a tannery in Pennsylvania who was looking out for a partner with a little money and who was also a good 'drummer" Mr Gould made an arrangement with him became a member of the firm put off the mill to Albany, came New York and obtained customers direct from the wholesale leather men and in three years bought out his partner and ran the business himself. Loup, the frozen out partner, took his business reverses so much to heart that he committed suicide

On his visits to New York Mr Gould was attracted by the greater advantages which the Empire City afforded for extending his business, and came here to reside He had ingratiated himself in the favorable esteem of one of the leather merchants with whom he had done business The merchant took him to his home to board, and Mr Gould fell in love with his handsome daughter It was a mutual affair of the heart, like that of his son George and Miss Edith Kingdon, and a speedy marriage was the result. The results of the happy union seem to have been all that could be desired and the domestic felicity of Mr and Mrs Gould, so far as the public have been able to ascertain, has never suffered the slightest jar or interruption

On his entrance to Wall street he began business alone Afterward he formed a partnership with Henry N Smith and Martin, the firm taking the name of Smith, Gould & Martin Martin now is in a lunatic asylum, and Henry N Smith who was the chief cause of the failure of William Heath & Co for $1,000,000 is now a poor pensioner on the bounty of his wife But Mr Gould still towers aloft in the full enjoyment and continued progress of his specious private prosperity, without being dismayed by any competitor, however powerful and overcoming all obstacles, no matter how gigantic

The modus operandi of Mr Gould, in the purchase and sale of railroads has been to buy up two or more bad roads put them together, give the united roads a new name, call it a good prosperous line, with immense prospects in the immediate future get a great number of people to believe all this, then make large issues of bonds and sell them at a good price for the purpose of further improving and enhancing the value of the property After these preliminaries had been gone through if profitable purchasers came along they could have the road at a price that would amply compensate Mr Gould for all his labor and acute management. If these purchasers should be unable to run the road profitably and were obliged to go into liquidation after a year or two as frequently happens then Mr Gould or his agents would very likely be found on hand at the sale to take back the road at a greatly reduced price Mr Gould would then get a fresh opportunity of showing the superiority of his management He would be able to demonstrate that the road had left him possession in excellent and progressive condition but through loose management had been run down He would then set about the work of reorganization again and go through the same role substantially, with slight variations, as before realizing a handsome profit on each successive reorganization

It was as a managing power of the Erie railroad that Mr Gould laid the broad foundation of his fortune The money and influence which he gained in connection with the Erie corporation enabled him to extend his operations in the acquisition of railroad property until through the Union Pacific and its various connections, Wabash and a number of Southwestern roads it seemed probable at one time that he was in a fair way of grasping the entire control of the transcontinental business in railroad matters And this was prior to the time when he obtained his present hold on telegraphic facilities

The methods of acquiring the control and the possession of other people's property have been raised to the dignity of fine art by Mr Gould This art has been prosecuted, too, through a "legitimate" means He has had the law at his back every time, and been supported in his marvellous acquisitions by the highest court authority

The manner in which he managed to get Western Union into his hands affords a very striking illustration of his methods and the great secret of his success

When first laying his schemes to obtain the control of the telegraph property he got up a construction company to build a telegraph line This was a company of exceedingly modest pretensions It had a capital of only $500 To build a line to the Western Union Telegraph Company, with which Mr Gould paralleled most of the important lines of the Western Union, and cut the rates until the older and larger corporation found that its profits were being reduced toward the vanishing point Then it was glad to make terms with its competitor a union of interests was the result, and Mr Gould obtained control of the united concern

"Impossible!" said Norvin Green in high dudgeon when the insidious intentions of Mr Gould were broached to him a few months before the settlement took place "It would bankrupt Gould and all his connections to parallel our lines, and to talk of harmony between him and us is the wildest kind of speculation" The genial doctor was then master of the situation in Western Union or imagined himself so at that time, and regarded with contempt the efforts of Gould and his colleagues to bring the company to terms In a few months afterward the doctor tamely submitted to play second fiddle to the little man whom he had formerly despised.

The arrangement in reference to the cable companies followed the capture of Western Union The struggle is still pending for the entire monopoly in the cable business, and it now seems only a question of time when the Bennett-Mackay party will have to succumb, leaving Gould in the supreme control of the new of the world If this should happen he would become an immense power for either good or evil, both in speculation and politics In fact, it would be too great a monopoly to be entrusted to the will of one man Although it might be judiciously managed as the cup of his ambition would then be surely full, yet the experiment would be extremely hazardous,

The controlling interest in the elevated railroads of this city recently acquired by Mr Gould through his business and speculative relations with Mr Cyrus W Field are of too recent date to require any special notice or comment here Suffice it to say that I fear that my friend Mr Field has now come out at the big end of the horn, although everything has no doubt been in conformity with the most approved business principles, and in strict adherence to the most honorable methods of dealing in railroad securities It is significant however that Mr Field has preserved a prudent reticence on the subject

"FREE WHISKY"

Remarks on the Campaign "Bogy" by ex Gov Long of Massachusetts

Ex Gov Long of Massachusetts is a very bright man and able speaker, We make the following extract from one of his recent speeches

No false cry of free whisky can deceive the people They know that the reduction some years ago of the whisky tax from $2 to 90 cents a gallon had no influence in increasing its use as a beverage, and they know that its entire abolition will have no other effect than to remove from the distillery the one great reliance on which it depends and by reason of which there now exists the whisky ring the whisky trust the meanest of all trusts the one trust to which the democratic eye even in the president's head is always blind and the democratic mouth always open the one trust as to which the lips of the blatant democratic orator for howling against trusts are always shut Look at the figures a moment There are fifty gallons in a barrel of whisky It is says Mr Hitt whose figures I follow put in by the distiller at a cost of 15 cents a gallon or $7 50 a barrel Under the internal revenue system he stores it in a United States warehouse A the end of three years an allowance is made for leakage of seven gallons The tax on the remaining 43 at 90 cents is $38 70 making the net cost $45 20 The whisky is then sold at $1 90 a gallon or $81 70 A barrel leaving a net profit on every barrel of $35 50 or 500 per cent on the investment of $7 50 the United States storing the whisky, doing its aging and mellowing, receiving no tax and no interest till the three years are up in which time the whisky ripens and is ready for sale This is the foundation of the whisky fund which is the prolific source of political and social corruption It maintains its lobbyists and agents wherever its interests are at stake watching congress especially like blood hounds At such a profit its revenues are enormous Do you wonder that it strains every nerve to maintain an internal revenue system, without which and without the direct intervention of the warehouse and tax machinery of the United States, the monopoly would be impossible, because general competition would be possible and could not as now be bought off or crushed out? Do you wonder that it has its shriekers in the field shouting "free whisky" when Republicans and prohibitionists and this Christian temperance women demand the repeal of the system under which such a cancerous monopoly and trust is possible?

THE INTERNAL REVENUE MUST GO

When the free traders howl free whisky' don't mince your words but stand on your Chicago platform and proclaim its declarations It needs no apology It breathes not one word in favor of the grog shop It recognizes indeed, the vital importance to our industries and labor of the protective system and declares as it ought to declare—nothing more and nothing less—that the internal revenue system should be abandoned before the protective system is abandoned And that is right. I want with all my heart to declare my conviction that the internal revenue system ought to go First because of the moral reasons I have stated in the interest of taking from the grog shop the one right est national hold on which it is now propped And second on sound economic grounds Nations, internal taxes are oppressive obnoxious and contrary to our national genius and practice They have here to ore never been resorted to except in cases of great exigency and then remitted as soon as the exigency was over When our civil war came they were resorted to as a war measure They are the distinctive war tax The war is over the revenue is not needed and this is the war tax that should be repealed! There is the honest way to get rid of a surplus revenue is to retract the steps we took to obtain it There are taxes the collection of which is attended with great and now unnecessary expense, with an army of office-holders who add to the rot of political corruption, and with special hardship and annoyance to the people on whom they are levied Needed no longer, there is not an argument to justify the retention If politics were laid aside, and it was a business question they would go in a twinkling and the country would get its main revenue from its customs, as has been the practice from the day of its birth Unfortunately it now appears that the loud-shouted surplus of $100 000 000 a year does not exist and that a democratic administration has increased the expenditure $95 000 000 and consumes nearly all the revenues I will not make this a point against the administration, I believe that in spite of some extravagances, most of our expenditures are proper and that we still err in many lines rather on the side of liberality to great national needs. But if there is a surplus, reduce it on the score of the internal taxes which we do not need Practically, however the surplus is now found to be so small that in repealing internal taxes we cannot yet take off all of them, and the whisky tax is in fact in less peril than I wish it was.

AN OVERWORKED PRONOUN

Mr Cleveland's Letter of Acceptance Illustrates His Old Weakness.

Cleveland Leader

President Cleveland has adopted the autocratic we" after the manner of the crowned heads of Europe and Asia. About one third of his letter of acceptance is devoted to expounding what "we propose" and "we believe' Then he continues the use of the autocratic we" with reference to himself nearly a score of times, as follows:

'We present to them," etc.
"We believe that the same means,' etc.
'We fully appreciate," etc
"We know the cost," etc
"We propose, therefore," etc.
"We will not neglect," etc.
"We will furnish," etc
"We propose in any adjustment," etc.
"We propose to," etc.
"We believe that," etc
'We count the checking," etc
"We cannot avoid," etc.
"We have entered upon no crusade," etc
'We seek to inaugurate," etc
'We are dealing," etc—and so on ad nauseam.

The president has not forgotten the use of the singular, as the following sample sentence will show

"These thoughts are intensified by the light of MY experience in the presidential office which has impressed ME with the severe responsibilities which it imposes, while it has quickened MY love for American institutions and taught ME the priceless value of the trust of MY countrymen"

Hill and Cleveland.

Detroit Journal.

Although Gov Hill, of New York, was very humble and self-sacrificing in his appeals to republicans and independents not to spare him if only Cleveland could be saved, he is the kind of politician who needs the closest watching when pretending to the most disinterestedness Indeed, the appeal looks like a deadly stab at Cleveland. "I am in no danger," he says in effect "I can probably pull through. It's poor Cleveland for whom I ask your prayers Unless the mugwumps and free trade republicans vote for him he is probably doomed So just because you don't like me, pray don't go back on him I can swim, but unless you throw you life preservers to him he will go under"

A more cunning and devilish way of knifing a man has not been invented since Joab struck Abner under the fifth rib while kindly inquiring after his health All of Hill's doings and sayings are of supreme importance because in all human probability Cleveland's re-election depends upon Hill's management of the campaign in New York

PROHIBITION AS IT IS.

No Doubt of Its Being a Hopeless Failure in Maine

An Easy Thing to Get a Drink—Bars Run with Open Doors—The Hard Part of It is the Quality of the Stuff

Bangor Letter to Pittsburg Dispatch

Notwithstanding the fact that the prohibitory liquor law has time and time again been shown to be a hopeless failure in this state the handful of men who support that farcical statute are yet unwilling to admit its impracticability and last Monday evening when it was found that the prohibition vote in the state fell short of 3000 in a total of over 150 000 their candidate for governor Volney B Cushing came up smiling as ever and apparently as happy as though he had led off in a successful fight instead of a ridiculous farce

Mr Cushing knows as well as anybody else that such a reform as he advocates will never go in Maine—nor in any other state for that matter In fact he ought to be doubly sensible of the futility of the movement for he belongs to Bangor But he and his colleagues say they are fighting for a principle and they appear to be content with

STIRRING UP A LITTLE NOISE

Every election time without the faintest hope of ever accomplishing anything

That is the sum and substance of prohibition campaigns in this state—past present and prospective

Recent articles in the Dispatch have shown very clearly the condition of affairs as regards the liquor traffic in Portland Augusta and Bangor but there is a small city on Penobscot bay that affords a different and perhaps more instructive study of the question than any other place in the state This is Rockland, the great lime manufacturing center, and its population is about 8000 In this little city there are certainly as many as fifty places where liquor is sold and the place has the reputation of dispensing the vilest compounds in the shape of drink to be found this side of the Rocky mountains

There is both a regular and a special police force and the officers are all supposed to seize liquor wherever found They claim to be very active in the discharge of this duty and to be above bribery and yet all these fifty or more rum holes—for there isn't a decent bar in the place—are doing a thriving business

BARS RUN OPENLY

The majority of places where liquor is sold are on the main street, and they are readily distinguished even by total strangers There is a front room, with a counter on which rests an empty showcase and a lot of shelving piled full of empty cigar boxes Then there is a board partition with a door the latter containing either a small pane of glass or peep hole The customer is inspected through the pane or the peep hole, and if he is 'all right' he is admitted to the rear room

If he wants 'hard stuff' as they call it in these parts a quart or pint bottle is produced from some secret recess—perhaps from the hip pocket of some lounger—and there is his whisky or rum And it is hard stuff" with the accent on the hard If the customer wants beer or ale it is poured out of a tin watering-pot, where it may have been for hours

This is a fair description of nine places out of ten in Rockland A man who is acquainted can do better however The principal hotel of the place, the Thorndike has

A BAROOM IN THE CELLAR

Where passable whisky and beer can be had at 15 cents for the former and 10 cents for the latter but most of the patrons are strangers—the natives won't stand the prices This bar is directly under the hotel office and when a policeman enters the house no matter what his errand may be the clerk on duty rings a gong which can be heard below and in less time than it takes to tell it that bar runs as dry as the desert of Sahara Then if the policeman has come to search for liquor he might as well go back and when he is out of sight the bar is running as cheerfully as before.

There is one place in Rockland where liquid refreshments are sold that is at once the best and quietest of them all To the passer by it appears to be simply a neatly furnished billiard room on the ground floor There are two pool tables a billiard table and long benches along the sides of the room Lots of young fellows play there, and when they are through or get dry they go to what appears to be a closet in one corner That closet is the head of a flight of stairs leading to the basement, and up those stairs at frequent intervals comes a young fellow bearing

A PITCHER OF ALE,

Freshly drawn The ale is drunk on the landing and the pitcher bearer disappears

When the proprietor thinks the police may be shying about he locks the stairway door and ushers his customers out of another door in the back yard, hence down a hallway into a cellar The cellar is dry and clean In the end next the street two small rooms are partitioned off, and within them one can sit down to a friendly game of almost anything and drink all he can pay for of the best the town affords, or he can simply stand up at an iron sink in the cellar proper and take his refreshment there

Travelers who want a flask to carry on the road and thirsty citizens who desire to "work the growler" find prices for bottled goods rather high in Rockland One can go to a drug store and get a pint of rum for 60 cents In Bangor the same thing would cost 30 cents In Rockland a half pint of bad whisky can be had for 35 or 40 cents or at the rate of about $6 a gallon Most of the dealers pay about $1 50 to $1 75 for the stuff and then doctor one gallon into two

ONLY ONE BEAUTY

That ought to be a paying business It is and it is one of the numerous beauties of prohibition 'as she is" But here is the worst feature of it all The whisky sold in Rockland is so bad and the prices asked for it are so high that there has grown up among young fellows of the place a habit of drinking alcohol They buy a half pint of it for 25 cents, and, adding a half pint of water and a little sugar produce a part of what they call 'split.' This concoction would turn the stomach of a rhinoceros, but there is a lot of it drank, especially on Sundays or other occasions when liquor might be difficult to obtain for the alcohol can be procured of the druggists

Considering the nature of the drinkables sold in Rockland it is small wonder that so many men become intoxicated there who, in other cities, would never commit a breach of sobriety The police cannot stop the sale of liquid poison, but they can arrest the poor fellows who are overcome by it and punish them by a heavy fine or imprisonment

And this is prohibition!

OPEN THE BOOKS

Iowa State Register

The unwillingness of those in authority at Washington to have the public records inspected as very suspicious. Subordinate officials acting as they say on the instructions of their superiors, withhold information that in other years was freely given Even congressmen have great difficulty in finding out about the condition of public business when they apply at the different departments That doesn't look well If the present administration has taken good care of the people's interests, why conceal the fact? If the democratic party has conducted the public business properly, why not let it be known? If the government accounts are all right why should access to them be denied to any citizen who wishes it?

But there is reason to believe that the democratic party has not been the faithful steward that it promised it would be four years ago Mr Hendricks devoted a great deal of time to denouncing the republican party for hoarding up an unnecessary surplus in the treasury, which he placed at about $400,000,000 Every one remembers how he used to divide that sum up before his Hoosier audiences, and make the unterrified democrats believe that if the democratic party came into power they would each of them have their proportionate share, or about six dollars. It is stated that at the close of one meeting a trustful democrat, completely convinced by Mr Hendricks's argument, filed his claim for $42, the amount he thought due himself, wife and five children Where is that surplus now?

A few days ago the United States treasurer Mr Wyatt frankly said there is no surplus Knowing the amount of money in the treasury the claims against it and the probable revenues he felt justified in saying that if a balance sheet were struck it would show no appreciable surplus in the treasury If that be true, and as a democrat Mr Wyatt would have no reason to misrepresent, and as treasurer he is in a position to know the facts—then what has become of the surplus? Was Mr Hendricks misrepresenting four years ago or have the democrats really been paying out the surplus on the six dollars all around plan Senator Allison showed that Cleveland's administration had cost the country $95 000 000 more than Mr Arthur's administration despite the democratic promises of economy and their large force of republican extravagance Let us have the books opened and see what the condition of the treasury really is The country doesn't want any bookkeeping on the dark lantern style which seems to prevail at Washington If there was a surplus of $300 000 000 when the democrats took charge in 1885 and if as Mr Wyatt says there is no surplus now it is of the utmost importance that the people know what has become of that surplus Give us a change of administration and the books will be opened and the people can find out the truth

THE REAL ISSUE

The Tariff Question at the Front Through at New England

BOSTON, Sept 13—This presidential election year has proved only a five months' wonder and the real issue of the campaign the tariff has come again to the front Even in the fish towns this time the main object of discussion, and every line of information in reference to protection and free trade is eagerly devoured Of such publication there is and may be expected a perfect flood but of all such literature none has been so well received and none has seemed so convincing in its argument as the pamphlet entitled What New England Owes to Protection lately issued As the Eastern States are typical manufacturing ones the workings of the tariff is more conspicuous and best appreciated and the article in question is furnished in applying to new sections where manufacturing has grown up under the fostering hand of protection Says the article The growth of New England in population and wealth and general stability is due directly to the protective system The increase of population in Massachusetts in the thirty years after the first census was taken in 1790 never reached 12 per cent in any decade For the whole thirty years the increase was only 38 per cent During the next ten years from 1820 until 1830 the people of the state began to avail themselves of the protective tariff and in that decade the increase was 17 per cent In the thirty years from 1820 to 1850 the aggregate increase was 90 per cent Rhode Island added less than 15 000 to her population between 1790 and 1820—barely 20 per cent In the next thirty years, owing to the growth of manufactures under the protective tariff she added 64 000 to her population or more than 75 per cent

The growth of Connecticut was more than four times as rapid after the protection system was adopted as it had been previously Moreover in all these states the rate of growth between 1850 and 1880 while protection was partially withdrawn was decidedly lower than in the years from 1840 to 1850

'At the time the American system was at last fairly adopted Southern New England was already as densely populated as it could be, if dependent upon its own resources alone for subsistence In 1830 the three states of Massachusetts Rhode Island and Connecticut, having an area of 13 970 square miles, contained a population of 1,005 282, an average of 72 to the square mile This is a denser population than any other state in the Union had in 1880 excepting New York, New Jersey Pennsylvania Delaware Maryland and Ohio and the population of the latter the least populated of these six states in 1880 was only 76 5 to the square mile Even Northern New England, with 48 035 square miles and 949 933 inhabitants, in 1830 had 19 77 persons to the square mile This is to say it was not much less densely populated than was Wisconsin in 1880, with 24 2 persons to the square mile

Now if we remember that not one of these states produces from its own soil a single article of importance that enters into the ordinary consumption of its people or its cattle except hay and potatoes that it could barely feed by the products of its agriculture the population that occupied it in 1830 but the fisheries the lumbering and the ocean commerce, which then were important industries in New England have languished or decayed, that its increase of population is to a very great extent directly engaged in the manufacturing industries which of late it has the protection of the tariff that all its thriving towns without a single exception are peopled for the most part by those employed by or directly concerned in supplying those who are in the employ of the manufacturing establishments, and that whenever, owing to the lack of water power, or to remoteness from market, or to some other cause it has not been worth while to establish any of the protected manufactures, the population has decreased and the farms have gone to decay When all this is borne in mind it forms a body of proof that the prosperity of New England has been created and is maintained by the direct influence of the tariff which it would be absurd to attempt answering

These same illustrations taken for convenience from the New England states, apply to most any manufacturing section where similar condition of soil exists"

WHEAT—The market is weak. Foreign advices are far from being satisfactory, while there seems to be a stronger tone in the Eastern markets. San Francisco is dull and weak with options a shade lower. For the local market a slight advance on $1 30 for Eastern Oregon is about all sellers can get. We quote valley $1 35@1 37½, Eastern Oregon $1 30. Chicago mail dates of a week ago indicate that speculation was dead. Trade was dull and looked as if it might continue so for some time. The speculative sentiment was bearish, but the general situation was considered so strong that the bears and short sellers were extremely cautious. On the other hand, the bulls were quiet and would not have objected to see the market ease off somewhat.

POULTRY—Ducks, geese and turkeys plentiful and weak. There seems to be slight demand for anything but chickens. We quote old chickens $4 50@5, large spring $3 50@4, broilers $2 50@3. Ducks $6@8. Geese $7@8. Turkeys 12½@14c per pound.

EGGS—Very scarce. Quote 27½c. The Eastern shipments have not been received, but are expected any day, when, of course, this price will be knocked away off.

MARKETS BY TELEGRAPH.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The stock market was dull and the tone of dealings feverish and weak. The dullness and apathy were quite as surprising as the wide fluctuations often weak spo. Grangers took a secondary place, while Vanderbilts were the most conspicuous. Northern Pacific was sold by London, and the illness of Mr. Wright had a depressing influence on the stocks. Governments were dull but firm.

MONEY, BONDS AND STOCKS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Money on call, easy at 1½ to 2 per cent., closed offered at 2. Prime mercantile paper, 3½@4½. Sterling exchange, quiet but steady at $4 84½ for 60 day bills, and $4 88 for demand.

SAN FRANCISCO MARKETS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 21.—Receipts past 24 hours include 117,000 ctls wheat, 841 qr sks flour, 3900 ctls oats, 3300 sks potatoes, 10,500 ctls barley.

FREIGHTS—Wheat tonnage neglected. Nearly all exporters are sufficiently supplied with ships, both on spot and to arrive, to prevent any pressing demand. Without a material improvement in foreign grain markets, freights must soon give way. The following charters are made public to-day: For wheat from Portland chartered prior to arrival, Br ship Eastern Monarch, iron, 1706 tons; Br ship Clan Mackenzie, iron, 1597 tons; Br bk Bessfield, iron, 1290; Br bk Allenby, iron, 1400 tons; Br sh p Bramblelye, iron, 1495 tons.

For wheat from Tacoma to U. K.—Br ship Lord Raglan, iron, 2087 tons.

For lumber from Puget sound to Melbourne—Br bk Wm. LeCheaur.

For coal from Nanaimo to San Pedro—Ger ship Amalia.

WHEAT—Market has a weak tone and trade very dull. Buyers and sellers are apart in their views; $1 07½ bid for No. 1 shipping, but there are no sellers at that figure. Options nativ; shade lower. Sales morning session: Buyer year, 100 tons at $1 09½, 300 at $1 09, 400 at $1 08¾, 1200 at $1 08¾; buyer season, 200 tons at $1 09¼, 200 tons at $1 08¾, 200 tons at $1 09, 100 tons at $1 08¾. Sales, afternoon session: 800 tons buyer year, at $1 08¾, 1000 tons at $1 08¾, 900 tons at $1 08¾.

BARLEY—There is rather more activity in the market, but no improvement in values. Low prices have brought out numerous buyers who are willing to work at concessions. Quote No. 1 feed 77½c, common 75c, choice feed 80c, brewing 85@90c. Options steady. Opened 90¾c buyer the year, $1 01¼ buyer the season. Closed 90¾c buyer year, $1 01 buyer season.

OATS—The market is weak and inactive, scarcely anything doing outside of retail character. $1 20 represent extremes on feed and $1 22½ for milling.

HOGS—Eastern advices are of a quiet character without any material alteration in prices. The local market is dull, buyers holding off, there being no margin for shipment. New hogs nominal at 1½@3c.

WOOL—Movement East is fair, but the undertone of the market is easier, 16@21c represents buyers' views for Oregon valley and 10@17c for Eastern Oregon.

MILLSTUFF—Steady demand for California product, while outside descriptions are quiet. Oregon bran $16@15 50, middlings $16@16 50.

VEGETABLES—Steady; unchanged.

BUTTER—25 to 40c about the best quotations for choice to fancy brands. Demand good; supplies moderate.

EGGS—Firm at 30@35c for choice fresh.

BAGS—Quiet and easy; demand poor.

NEW YORK MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Wheat opened irregular: 95¾ October, 98¾ November, $1 00¾ December; $1 05¾ May. Noon, steadier: 95¾c October, 98¾c November, 96 40c December, $1 03¾ May. Closed: 95¾c October, 98¾c November, 97 05c December, $1 03¾ May. Cotton in good pay steam from New York to Liverpool 4d per bushel, a decline of ¾d.

MISCELLANEOUS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Petroleum opened steady at 92¾c, ¼c below last night's close, and after a slight advance in early trading became heavy and sagged off to 91¾c. A slight recovery then occurred and the market closed steady at 91¾c.

HOPS—Strong and quiet.

COFFEE—Options opened weak and closed steady with moderate business on lower cables. Sales: 67,000 bags, including September at $12 95@13 05; October, $12 35@12 60; November, $11 75@11 95; December, $11 35@11 55. Spot unsettled and easy; fair cargoes, 15½c.

SUGAR—Raw, quiet and firm; refined, in fair demand and firm.

WOOL—Firm and fairly active; domestic fleece 23@31c.

COPPER—Steady; Lake, $17 65.

Protection Paramount.

WHEELING, Sept. 15.—J. H. Diehl of this city, has withdrawn from the candidacy on the union labor ticket for state auditor, and urges his friends to vote the republican ticket, as he says protection is the paramount issue of the campaign.

Run Down

From the weakening effects of warm weather, by hard work, or from a long illness, you need a good tonic and blood purifier. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives a good appetite, strengthens the whole system, purifies the blood, regulates the digestion.

"I feel it does all it is claimed to recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla. My health two years ago was very poor. My friends thought I was going with consumption. I commenced using Hood's Sarsaparilla, took five bottles of it, and to-day I can do as much work as I ever could." WILLIS R. TIBBEY, 141 East Main Street, Wapakoneta, Ohio.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Tea & Perrins' Sauce

Tea & Perrins, the original and genuine Worcestershire Sauce, has been before the public over half a century. Like all popular favorites, it has long been the standard of comparison and the pattern for counterfeiters, who not being able to imitate its excellence, offer to the public imitations in bottling, labels and style of putting up. They dare not counterfeit the signature of Lea & Perrins, which is on the red label of every genuine bottle, and of which this is a facsimile.

Lea & Perrins

To be sure of obtaining the genuine article, see that the above signature is on the label.

You Need

The most effective medicine for the cure of any serious ailment. If you are suffering from Scrofula, General Debility, Stomach, Liver, or Kidney diseases, try Ayer's Sarsaparilla—the safest, best, and most economical blood purifier in use.

For many years I was troubled with Liver and Kidney complaint. Hearing Ayer's Sarsaparilla very highly recommended, I decided to try it and have done so with the most satisfactory results. I am convinced that Ayer's Sarsaparilla is ever compounded, for diseases caused by an impure blood.—Edward W. Richardson, Milwaukee, Wis.

The Best Remedy

I have found Ayer's Sarsaparilla a most effectual remedy, in the various forms of Scrofula, than any other we possess.—James Lull, M. D., Potsdam, N. Y.

I have taken, within the past year, several bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and find it admirably adapted to the needs of an impoverished system. As a blood purifier, and as a tonic, I am convinced that this wonderful preparation has no equal.—Charles C. Dame, Pastor Congregational Church, Andover, Me. ††

...ORE UP ABOUT THE CITY.

Important Mining Company Incorporated With a Large Capital Stock.

Noted Colored Pugilists Coming—New Train Master Appointed—Gone to the Sound—Another Baseball Game—Burglars

OFF FOR SOUTH AMERICA.—Mr S S Nicolini, the artist, whose sketches of Mount Hood have been so generally admired, left last night by steamer for San Francisco Mr Nicolini's Fourth of July views of Mount Hood have been purchased by members of the Alpine club and will be presented to the club and continue to hang in its rooms The sketches taken by him on the Josephine county trip he will have to take with him, as they are yet unfinished Mr Nicolini is a great traveler having been during the past twelve years all over the United States and Europe His portfolio contains hundreds of unmounted photos and sketches made by himself in all parts of the world "The Count," as he is known by his friends will soon leave for a tour of South America where he will spend some months Mr Nicolini carries with him the best wishes of a host of warm friends made during his brief sojourn here His home is in Ragusa, Austria.

ARTERIES SEVERED.—Shortly after 5 o'clock last evening Joe Widdle a glazier, employed on S G Reed's new building at First and B streets, was standing on a box putting in place one of the large 21 ounce lights of the front doors of the building A misstep destroyed his hold on the door and the pane of glass fell glancing upon his right wrist cutting a number of small arteries but no large one. He at once went in search of a doctor, but failing to bind up the arm the blood poured rapidly forth and marked the course of his walk up First street Dr Eisen was finally found and a temporary bandage put on in Plunder's drug store, from which he was removed to Portland hospital At a late hour last night he was resting easily though faint from excessive loss of blood

MINING COMPANY INCORPORATED.—Articles of incorporation of the Alma and Nellie Ward Consolidated Gold Milling and Mining Company were filed with the county clerk yesterday by Messrs. B, S and L J Goldsmith The business of the corporation is buying, selling, owning and operating mines and mining property in the state of Oregon and the territories of Washington and Idaho and to erect and operate smelters, concentrators and ore milling and mining machinery and to do whatever else may be found necessary and convenient for the successful carrying on of the business of the company The capital stock of the company is $5,000 000 in 500 000 shares and the principal place of business of the corporation is to be in Portland

REDUCED TO WORK.—The well-known contractor, John Bays of the firm of Bays & Jeffery, was seen with his coat off, hard at work on Washington street yesterday, the sweat coursing down his forehead in rivulets. 'I se you've had to come down to hard work and earn your bread in the sweat of your brow, like the rest o' us,' said a passer by to Mr Bays. "When a man has spent all his money in building a sewer for the city and can't get his money or any interest, he has to get his bread somehow,' was the reply Mr Bays alluded to the little matter of $20 000 or so which the city owes him and Jeffery for the Tanner creek sewer If the city don't ante soon Mr Jeffery will have to take off his coat too

THE YEAR'S RAINFALL.—The rainfall of 1888 to date is 7 06 inches below the average precipitation, fifty-two odd inches, though in 1884, 1885 and 1888 something less than forty inches fell each year. The Willamette, however, is still three and a half feet above the zero mark at the boneyard gauge In the Snake river country the rainfall the present season as well as the winter snowfall, was so light as to cause the lowest water in Snake river and its tributaries ever known. During the extreme low water of two years ago the O R & N Co's snag river gauge was set down, but the level is now considerably below the zero point then fixed.

WILL GO TO-DAY.—As previously announced, Port Captain J W Troup of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company expects to leave to-day with the T J Potter for the Sound She has been extensively brazed and some repairing and finishing done. The officers and crew which will take the boat over will be transferred to the Alaskan and bring that steamer around to this port. The change is made necessary through the inability of the Sound trade to support so large and expensive a steamer as the Alaskan This boat will be put on between Portland and Astoria by the time the Mechanics' fair opens, if not earlier.

JACKSON GODFREY COMBINATION.—W D Lee, business representative of the Jackson-Godfrey athletic combination, arrived here yesterday to make arrangements for a scientific boxing exhibition which will be given at Turn Halle Wednesday evening, the 26th. The principal attractions of the combination are Peter Jackson and George Godfrey the well-known colored pugilists who were given such a welcome in San Francisco Paddy Gorman and Sam Fitzpatrick will also have a friendly set-to In addition to the boxing, plantation specialties, African harp solos and other entertaining renditions will be given by the Eclipse quartette.

THE SUSPENSION BRIDGE.—It has been necessary to go through upon the east side of the river at Oregon City, between twenty and thirty feet of earth to reach rock for anchorage of the tower for the suspension bridge This depth of earth is now supplemented by ten feet of rock anchorage On the west side the rock is near the surface, and a depth of thirteen feet is used. This tower is now ready and the east one will be completed in about a week. The cables are in position to be stretched, and will probably be hung about the first of October

THE RACE HORSES.—Some of the good horses have spent the week at City View Ranchero and two or three of Mr T H. Tongue's horses, among them Fred. Hambleton, which is still lame. The others will most of them, spend the week here, as there is a week's idleness before the Walla Walla fair, which begins Monday October 1 Somebody has suggested that their presence should be utilized by making a few races Perhaps the owners will match some of their horses, though the attendance would probably justify fair sized purses

GOES TO BOOM PROPERTY.—Manager Holcomb and General Freight Agent Campbell, of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company left yesterday for the Sound, on business connected with the company. When the gentlemen were asked the Sound, a short time since, the papers there gave it out that the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company was contemplating the purchase of the Seattle, Lake Shore & Eastern railroad Mr Holcomb said on his return there was nothing in this report, which was merely started to boom Sound property

IT WORKED O K.—Yesterday the water in the Skidmore fountain was turned on for the purpose of ascertaining whether the pipes were in good running order A crowd gathered about the fountain and as the sparkling water began to shoot heavenward all manner of ejaculations of satisfaction and pleasure were expressed. Each person seemed to feel an individual pride in the city's acquisition of another adjunct of a prosperous and well regulated metropolis Everything was found to work without a hitch of jar

LABOR AMOUNTS HANDLED.—There is a large amount of money handled at the postoffice every day, much more than most people have any idea of We have taken in $15,000 so-day," said Postmaster Roby yesterday. "and Thursday we sent $14 000 to New York We pay out, on an average three times as much as we take in as many country merchants and other people remit here by postal order to pay for goods, etc One bank alone takes in from a thousand to fifteen hundred dollars a day in money or fives."

APPOINTED TRAINMASTER.—A circular from the office of Superintendent C W Johnson of the O R. & N Co announces that Mr E. B. Coman is appointed trainmaster of the company, with headquarters at Walla Walla, W. T. Mr Coman's jurisdiction extends over the eastern division and branches and that portion of the line between Ritzville and Lewiston Junction. He comes from Kansas City, and is a competent and experienced railroad man.

HOPS IN LINN COUNTY.—A correspondent writing from Brownsville Linn county says Our hop men are doing all in their power to get along with their work but they are very badly in need of more pickers It is expected this week that Kirk & Co and F M Jack will finish A. G Haudman's crops seem slow to ripen and he has not commenced picking yet, but intends to commence at once. Most of our growers around here have contracted at from 12½ to 14 cents per pound, and now prices are advancing considerable

ARMS FRACTURED.—A day or two since a 6-year-old son of H Banfield residing on Market and Fourteenth streets fell from a velocipede and broke his left forearm. A surgeon was called to dress the limb Mr John Clark long and favorably known in the city met with quite a serious accident and is now confined to his room at the Portland hospital While engaged in painting a house at Freak's Landing a few days ago the scaffolding gave way, precipitating him to the ground and fracturing his arm

BARBER SHOP BURGLARIZED.—Early yesterday morning the barber shop of Michael Fischer at No 23, Salmon street was entered by burglars and two complete kits of tools including sixteen razor strops and brushes were stolen Entrance was effected by breaking a pane in the front window After ransacking the entire establishment the burglars took their departure through the door by turning the latch on the inside The thieves have not yet been apprehended No clue has been obtained

A SMALL MORNING BLAZE.—About 3 o clock yesterday morning engine No. 1 and hose No 2 were called out to a fire in a small one-story dwelling on Fifteenth street between O and P The fire originated either in the kitchen or cellar through what cause is not known The house was occupied by Mrs Talmadge a widow who at the time of the fire was out of the city Only the kitchen and a small portion of the furniture was burned and the loss will not exceed $200

GENEROUS DONATIONS.—Several contributions of money were left at THE OREGONIAN office yesterday for the unfortunate man Stuart of Rooster Rock whose house and property were burned while he was endeavoring to save a neighbor's property Several prominent citizens will contribute supplies for the family Dr J J Fisher of Albina will receive any contributions the citizens of that place may desire to make for the relief of Mr Stuart and his family

FINE OREGON GRAPES.—A large basket of grapes of the Blue Portuguese" variety was left at the office of THE OREGONIAN yesterday afternoon These grapes were raised on the ranch of Mr. S Simon who has quite a large vineyard on the section line road south of Mount Tabor. The grapes are of an excellent flavor Mr Simon engages quite extensively in the cultivation of grapes and makes large quantities of wine

THE REMAINS SENT EAST.—Dr John Smith, at one time a practicing physician here, but for the last year resident at The Dalles and who came down here for medical treatment died suddenly Wednesday evening at the Quimby house He has many friends here who will regret his untimely end He was a native of Ottawa, Canada, where his relatives reside. His remains were sent East last night in charge of J F Hickey.

THE WORK GOES ON BRAVELY.—A derrick has been rigged up in front of the big hotel, and yesterday joists for the third story floor were being hoisted up The central walls in the south wing are nearly completed and the bricklayers are stringing along on the cross walls between the wings The shafts for the passenger and freight elevators are being carried up with brick walls and very substantial ones at that.

SALT LAKES VS WILLAMETTES.—Arrangements have been made for another game between the Willamettes and Salt Lakes to take place at Chinton & McCoy's grounds tomorrow afternoon The Willamettes have reorganized and have some new players and will go into the game with the determination of winning back their lost laurels Tom Parrott and Turnbull will be their battery

SHORT OF BOYS.—Since school commenced the American District Telegraph Co, 162 First street, have been short of messenger boys This has necessarily caused much annoyance, but the company trust their patrons will be as patient as possible until the ranks can be filled up Boys who wish employment should call at the District office

CATARACT REMOVED.—Yesterday Mrs Kate Paul of Stella, W T, came to Portland to have her eye fitted with a cataract glass Some time since Dr E C Brown successfully removed a hard cataract from her right eye which had been blind for more than a year With a proper glass Mrs Paul can now see to read and write

FIVE DOLLARS FOR THE SINGING BIRDS.—In reference to the introduction of English singing birds into Oregon J G West of Salem will give $5 but he does not want any bull finches There will be no trouble of raising sufficient money, if proper parties undertake the collection and work in the proper quarters

THE PUNDITA RAMABAI.—This distinguished Hindu and philanthropist will speak at the Unitarian church on Sunday evening Her history has interested all England and crowded assemblages have listened to her in Eastern cities, and lately in San Francisco

WILL BE SHIPPED TO-DAY.—Mr T P Martin who suicided Wednesday night at the Quimby has a father mother and two sisters at Hollister California The body will be shipped to-day to them by De Lin & Holman, who have finished preparing it for the trip

THE BARK COLOMA.—The bark Coloma has finished taking in 180 spars at the public levee and to-day will be moved up to Smith's mill to take on 150,000 feet of lumber The spars are a handsome lot of sticks such as can hardly be equaled out of Oregon

DON'T THINK IT WAS SUICIDE

An Old Acquaintance of Mr Jacob Nelson Suspects Foul Play

"I saw it stated in THE OREGONIAN, said Mr James H Wilson, of Powell's Valley to a reporter yesterday 'that there was no evidence of Mr Jacob Nelson's having been paid any such amount of money as he was reported to have received from the sale of his lands

"I sought his place of him myself and on the 8th day of October last paid him $500 in gold I also know of his receiving a large amount of money some three or four years ago. I do not think he committed suicide at all, and I cannot get the idea out of my mind that foul play was connected with his mysterious death"

"What are your reasons for thinking so?" was asked

"He was a very temperate and economical man and saved his money He lived very comfortably for a bachelor It is true, but was careful about expenditures About three years ago he had some money left him. He went to Denmark and had to go to San Francisco to establish his identity and get the money made over to him He was not very communicative about his affairs, but I made bold to ask him how much he received His reply as I understood it at the time and remember now was 'About $700,' though he might have said $7000 Knowing his prudent and saving habits I am inclined to a strong opinion that his death was caused at another's hand, and with robbery as a motive I should not be surprised to hear of this money being found concealed about his place"

How long have you known Mr Nelson?"

'I settled on a piece of land adjoining his some ten years ago this fall He had been there two years then, and we were thus neighbors till last fall when he moved to town. In all that time I have never known him to make a useless expenditure or drink a glass of intoxicating beverage whatever"

'Do you know anything about the suspicions cast upon his previous life?'

'I cannot believe the statement that he was known in New York ten years ago, and refused to acknowledge his identity here As I have said he had been on that place for twelve years and his previous residence he has often told me was in Illinois He has also spoken of living in Michigan and said he had been in America twenty three years He has a brother in Dakota, and a sister in the old country."

THE CŒUR D'ALENE MINES.

Facts and Figures Given About Them by Jas F Wardner.

The Sixth Shipment of Gold Bricks—Output and Dividends of the Lead and Silver Mines—Estimates of Profits

Mr James F Wardner who is prominently connected with the mines of the Coeur d Alene country is stopping at the Esmond hotel, where an OREGONIAN reporter found him last evening, and questioned him concerning the present and future of the mines.

Mr Wardner brought up two gold bricks from the Alma and Nellie Woods consolidated mine weighing 216 ounces which were examined by several gentlemen yesterday at the office of Mr B Goldsmith They were expressed on the afternoon overland train to San Francisco where they will be coined at the mint This is the sixth shipment of gold which has been made from the mine during the past thirty days

I took hold of this mine on the 24th day of last April said Mr Wardner and after three or four months of developing we are beginning to realize returns The output for October will run from $30,000 to $60 000 We have been running a ten-stamp mill at intervals interrupted by the work of doubling the capacity of the mill It is a source of wonder to miners that so rich a vein of gold should lie in such close proximity to the leads of silver and lead ore which are there The Elk creek gold mines, as we call them are two miles from Wardner and are the only gold producing mines in that country

'I was mining for eight years in the Black Hills country the Homestake mine there, upon which a development fund of $250 000 was expended before it paid and which has declared dividends aggregating between $3 000 000 and $4 000 000 paid on an average $4 87 of gold to the ton The average yield the ton of ore is $25 So that while the extent of our deposits so far as known is less than theirs yet in length of vein, in the more rapid operations, and consequent less cost of mining it seems to me is promised as great an income as from the Homestake which is the best paying gold mine now in operation in the world The Homestake is running 600 stamps I think by spring we will use 100

'What about the silver and lead mines?'

'On the 20th day of October 1885, I brought down from the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mines the first five sacks of lead and silver ore ever taken out of the Coeur d'Alene mines The complete success and paying qualities of those mines are well known and the growth of the country has kept pace with their development.—There is shipped from them to-day nearly one-third of the entire lead product of the United States

'This prosperous condition is now largely enhanced by the present high price of lead which is quoted to-day at 5 cents per pound. We recently made about $50 000 by holding on to our lead supply during the prevalence of low prices The mines can be worked at a profit when lead is down to $3 70 per hundred weight.

"The concentrate runs about 70 per cent. to lead, and $5 ounces of silver to the ton It is thus easy to figure the value of a ton of concentrate after making the usual losses in smelting, at $33 92. Estimating the cost of freight and treatment at $40 per ton, which is ample there is still left a handsome balance of $53 92 for interest on the investment, cost of concentrating and margin of profit, as three tons of ore usually make a ton of concentrate The profit on a ton of ore will be about one-third of the above estimate, from which should be deducted the cost of mining, concentrating, etc which is not over $5 per ton

'What is the output of these mines?'

'The output for October I should put as follows

Bunker Hill & Sullivan	4,200 tons
Sierra Novada	2,000 tons
Stemwinder	3,000 tons
Tiger	2 600 tons
Poor Man	3,600 tons
Granite	3,000 tons
Total	19,400 tons

"This showing is substantially in effect now except the Granite mine which will not begin work till about the first of the month

'Estimating three tons of ore to one of concentrate and 65 per cent as the yield of lead per ton we have 6460 tons of concentrate 4202 tons of pure lead each month or 50 424 per year The consumption of lead last year in the United States was about 150 000 tons

Many important mineral properties not mentioned here will be worked by next spring. The Tyler has for the time being suspended operations during the building of a tunnel 1500 feet in length The immense lead mines of the Carbon district including the late venture of Geo B Markell D F Sherman and J E Boss will begin yielding as soon as the preliminary developing can be done The Gold Hunter mine of Mr Dennis Ryan of St. Paul, Minn. will be the equal of any there"

What dividends, if any have been paid?'

'The Bunker Hill and Sullivan dividends which have been declared are as follows

April 28	$50,000
August 18	40,000
August 28	60,000

'Another will be paid the present month and as immense quantities of ore are in transit more are certain for the future"

Mr Wardner will leave to-day for the scene of the mines stopping one day in Spokane.

NOT "MINE HOST" OF THE ST CHARLES

Something About the Big Quarter of a Million Suit Just Begun

The Mr Knowles reported in the dispatches Thursday morning as having begun suit in St Louis against Jonathan Bourne, Jr, for a quarter of a million of dollars, is not C W Knowles of the St. Charles hotel, as some supposed

He is S H Knowles of Santa Cruz, California, and was a partner with Mr Bourne and C W Knowles in the noted Cracker creek mine which was sold some time since to a syndicate at St. Louis for a million dollars more or less Mr S H Knowles somehow was not satisfied with the terms or conditions of the sale, and left some time since for St. Louis with Mr Cecil Holcomb

The news of the commencement of the suit against Mr Bourne is the first intimation received here as to the object of his journey Mr Bourne says there is nothing in it, and he does not understand exactly what it means Mr C W Knowles says there is no reason for bringing any such suit, and thinks his namesake is "a little off"

WORK ON THE RIVER CHANNEL.

What an Old River Man Has to Say About the City Dredger, Etc

"Talk about the government opening up the river channel!' said an old river man yesterday, "it will never do it It is too slow There is no more water in the channel now than when I first came here sixteen or seventeen years ago The way that channel ought to be cleaned out is to take the city dredger and operate it The government dredge doesn't amount to anything, but that city dredger is one of the best adapted boats of its kind, to the purpose for which it was intended, that I know of anywhere It ought, perhaps to be a little wider and a little longer and two buckets added to facilitate its work If it was put to work about August 1 or as soon as the water gets down to twenty feet on the bar, it could be operated at a cost of $1000 a month for six or eight months in the year, and a clear river depth of twenty-five feet kept up the year round from Portland to the sea

CURRENCY CONSTANTLY KEEPS COMING.

Unusually Large Demand for Money the Present Month—Where It Goes.

It must not be supposed, from the publicity which the recent lost package of currency has received, that there is a surplus of money accumulating in Portland, as the contrary is the case.

The currency which is shipped from Portland to the East, is only sent to cover a deficiency in the amount of exchange available for Eastern deposit, against which to make drafts for Portland customers. The demands of the local money market are such at present as to require shipments of coin from San Francisco to the amount of from $75,000 to $120 000 per week. The first move creating this demand was the application from interior towns for currency with which to pay farmers for their wheat. Close upon the wheat movement comes the hop picking season

It is estimated by hop buyers that $200 000 are paid out in wages to hop pickers in the state of Oregon Some addition to the demand for currency is furnish d in the fall by wool sales, though most o. this crop is held over until spring

O this great volume of money setting in toward us to be immediately disbursed throughout the surrounding country almost all consists of gold coin from San Francisco in the central states silver and paper currency are popular with all classes of people but on this coast, ever since financial markets have been in existence, gold is the chief circulating medium Paper money accumulates in our banks and is shipped East for redit but silver also is almost co stantly being shipped back to San Francisco in exchange for gold

The present active demand for money will last about six weeks longer though the balance of trade generally continues markedly in our favor up to the holidays when for two or three months or until the wool movement begi is to need funds shipments of gold are made regularly from Portland

FROM ONTARIO TO SAN FRANCISCO

Strong Probability of the Union Pacific Connecting These Points by an Independent Line

A gentleman just in from Southern Oregon speaking of the dispatch from San Francisco published in THE OREGONIAN in regard to the Union Pacific surveying a route for a railroad through southeastern Oregon says The Union Pacific Railroad Company has two exploring parties in the field seeking the most practicable route for a line from Ontario to San Francisco They have made a most thorough and critical examination of all the country but can these two points

The most practicable route thus far obtained and the route which beyond a doubt will be adopted is after leaving Ontario they will follow up the Malheur river thence along the south side of Malheur and Harney lakes leaving Warner lake to the south and Albert lake to the east to Lake View thence following the east side of Goose lake till Pitt river is reached thence along Pitt river to Sacramento valley

The distance by this route to a junction with the Union Pacific at Granger is 250 miles longer than by way of the Central Pacific but owing to the comparatively easy grades it is claimed that the distance can be traveled over this line in less time than over the Central Pacific.

As to the completion of this line it is considered certain that it will be finished in three years The object of the road is to secure a route to San Francisco independent of the Central Pacific The prospect of any advantage to be gained by opening up the southeastern part of Oregon is only a secondary consideration, as the value of that section from an agricultural standpoint has been greatly overestimated"

COMPLAINTS AND THEIR ANSWER

Trouble in the Street Car Connections on the East Side

Yesterday morning five men took the U street car line in East Portland expecting to connect with the line across the bridge Upon arriving at the junction no car was there to transfer, and they were compelled to walk clear across the bridge Complaint was entered at THE OREGONIAN office and a reporter delegated to inquire into the cause of the failure to have connections made

'I must admit' said Mr Campbell that in this case there is adequate cause for complaint Most of the kicks we receive are undeserved and this trouble no one regrets any more than myself We have eleven cars in operation and something like sixteen drivers employed and it requires pretty close looking after I assure you, to keep things running smoothly I am down here every morning at 6 o clock and personally see to the starting of each car The mistake in question was I suppose, more my own fault than anyone's though under unfavorable conditions Two of our drivers became intoxicated while on duty yesterday and I had to discharge them The man I put on in one's place was ignorant of the proper connections, and I suppose I made a mistake in explaining them to him

At any rate instead of waiting at the junction for the U street car, he made connection with the main line and drove on The mistake is one which I can safely promise will not occur again'

'You might remind the public again that the car which connects with the Sunnyside motor line starts from the bridge on the even hour and half hour only as some forget this"

"Are your connections interfered with by the drawbridge being thrown open for boats?"

'No In case of a delay of this nature on the bridge the connecting lines wait for the bridge cars and then make up their time by faster driving"

WILL OFFER IT AGAIN

A Certain Lot of Opium Will be Put Up for Sale To day

That lot of smuggled opium which was withdrawn from sale by United States Marshal Myers a day or two since, will be offered again to-day Said Back who offered $10 a pound for the opium says he has since discovered that it is of inferior quality what is called second opium and which is not worth what he offered for it

He also says that the opium was never said to be sold to the highest bidder He was the highest bidder on the ten pound lot offered and claims that it should have been knocked down to him and then the sale of the remainder could have been postponed if desired He has no idea that any more than he will be offered. Marshal Myers however, says he has a bid of $11 per pound to start the stuff on to-day

Said Back is a little suspicious of smuggled opium as he bought a lot not long since and found most of the tins filled with oatmeal He says he paid for the stuff and has not yet been able to get his money back from Uncle Sam

AN EVENING IN ALASKA

An Interesting Lecture and Entertainment at the Tabernacle Last Evening

A good sized audience greeted Mr Webster last evening when he came upon the platform of the Tabernacle to deliver his lecture on "Alaska" Nearly a hundred fine stereopticon views of that region were thrown on the canvas, each one of which was accompanied by an interesting description. This is the first entertainment given by the Alpine Club for the benefit of the stereopticon fund, and others of a similar character will be given from time to time, showing the scenery of the Northwest.

The Alpine Club has been making persistent efforts to attract the finest lecturers to Portland, has succeeded in getting Nast, Dickens Burdette and Cable, and is now negotiating for others of equal note, but while the work is of so much benefit to our city it has not proved a financial success for the club and will be abandoned unless the Portland public extend a more liberal patronage

THE SKIDMORE FOUNTAIN.

It Will be Formally Presented to the City at 3 P M. To-Day.

Arrangements have been completed for the formal delivery of the Skidmore fountain from the hands of the committee to the city, with appropriate ceremonies at 3 o'clock this afternoon Following is the programme:

1. Invocation by Rev Geo. H. Atkinson.
2. Presentation address by Mr C E S Wood, representing the Skidmore fountain committee.
3. Unveiling the fountain.
4. Address on the part of the city
5. Turning on the water.

A general invitation is extended to officers of the city government and to the public in general to be present on the occasion.

GRAND OPENING.

The Washington saloon, corner Sixth and Washington streets, having been refitted in grand style, will reopen its doors to the public this evening. The finest brands of wines, liquors and cigars are always to be found at the bar. ED MORGAN, Prop'r

Through Pullman sleepers and dining cars, also second-class sleepers through to the east via Northern Pacific Railroad Office, No. 2 Washington street.
